Boston Liner, 40 Miles Away, Chased by Submarine

ROW IN BRITISH CABINET

ETONIAN IN, REPORTS 2 SHIPS WERE NEAR THE SINKING LINER

The Leyland liner Etonian, Captain Wood, which docked at East Boston today, fled from two German submarines on the same afternoon that the Lusitania was torpedoed and sunk, and was within forty miles of the stricken Cunarder and her drowning passengers when the wireless appeals for succor were flashed. But she did not dare turn back to help.

Members of the Etonian's crew admitted today the proximity of their ship to the sinking Lusitania and said, too, that they caught a wireless from the British freighter Narragansett which read:

"Lusitania torpedoed. Come at once. Listed badly."

The Etonian's wireless operator denied that he caught the Lusitania's distress signals direct.

The testimony of the Leyland liner's crew shows that the Irish Sea, in the vicinity of the sinking Cunarder, was liberally dotted with craft that might have gone to the relief of the Lusitania, but for the great number of German submarines in the immediate vicinity.

TORPEDO MISSES THE NARRAGANSETT

The Narragansett reported that a torpedo was directed at her, but missed.

Said Captain W. F. Wood of the Etonian:

"Germany must have had a whole flotilla of submarines in the Irish Sea that day. It seemed to us that her whole force of under-sea fighters was on the job. The war sharks were evidently out to get the Lusitania that day no matter what course she followed. We saw two of them ourselves within a half-hour. They gave us a thrill.

"We had left Liverpool without unusual incident, and it was 2 in the afternoon of Friday, May 7, that we received the wireless S. O. S. call from the Lusitania. Her wireless operator sent this message: 'We are 10 miles south of Kinsale. Come at once.'

"I was then about 42 miles distant from the position he gave me. Two other steamships were ahead of me, going in the same direction. They were the Narragansett and the City of Exeter. The Narragansett was closer to the Lusitania and she answered the S. O. S. call.

"A 5 p. m. I observed the City of Exeter cross our bows and she signaled.

"The captain of the Narranganset warned me not to attempt to rescue the Lusitania's passengers.

"I was on the bridge. It was early afternoon. The weather was fine. We were shaping a course for old Kinsale Head. We couldn't have been more than forty or forty-five miles from the spot where the Lusitania went down.

RACE FROM SUBMARINES.

"I and the officers were concerned about the British warship City of Exeter, which was steaming at high speed in an oblique course off our port bow. There were fears of a collision. That was uppermost in the minds of all, when suddenly there

TRANSYLVANIA IN SUBMARINE PERIL

By International News Service.

GLASGOW, May 18.—Although the Anchor liner Transylvania, which has just arrived from New York with war munitions, was convoyed part of the way along the coast by a warship, it was learned today that she narrowly escaped the fate of the Lusitania.

On Sunday evening a German submarine was sighted following the Transylvania, but she was submerged when she came under the British cruiser's guns.

"The submarine was seen about 6 o'clock on Sunday evening," said Lieutenant-Colonel R. T. Simpson, a doctor of Ottawa, Ont., who was one of the Transylvania's passengers. "There were few passengers on the deck at the time, as the weather was cold. However, several persons distinctly saw the periscope, among them the ship's chief engineer.

"The submarine is believed to have been a boat of the 'U' type. As soon as it was seen the Transylvania altered her course and began zigzagging through the water. This exposed the underwater boat to the guns of the cruiser convoying us, and she rapidly submerged herself.

When we left New York the latest information we had about the Lusitania was that all hr passengers had been saved, but later we received wireless information giving the extent of the terrible disaster. These messages were receivd by the captain, but their contents leaked out and caused great excitement among the passengers. This increased as we reached the British coast."

Another passenger who saw the submarine was George Harter, an engineer.

"I saw the boat disappearing under the water," said Harter. "It sent out a wave like the fin of a fish cleaving the water. This wave was only about two boats' length from the Transylvania and directly astern."

"U. S. CITIZEN" ON TRIAL AS SPY

By International News Service.

LONDON, May 18.—Anton Kuepferle, who claims to be a citizen of the United States, was placed on trial in Old Bailey today, charged with "communicating or attempting to communicate naval movements to the enemies of England." Charges of espionage were lodged against Kuepferle and two companions, Herr Muller and Herr Hahn, February 26. Hahn and Muller will be tried later.

After a motion to quash the indictment had been denied and the indictment had been amended by the court, Kuepferle entered a plea of not guilty.

Baron Redding, lord chief justice of England, occupied the bench, supported by two high court justices. There was a great array of counsel, the attorney-in-chief for the government being Sir John Simon, Attorney-General.

The court ruled that all special questions as to whether any act had been done by Kuepferle to assist the enemies of England would be left to the jury.

The Kuepferle-Hahn-Muller trials are the most important espionage cases since the trial of Karl Lody, who was executed in the tower of London November 6.

Dance Romance in Woburn Betrothal

Woburn society is interested in the engagement announced of Miss Serena B. Yates, widely known as an exponent of modern dancing, to Stanley M. Lawrece, son of Mrs. Charles Lawrence of Jamaica Plain. The engagement follows a romance that had its inception when the young people met at a dansant at the Copley-Plaza four months ago. Miss Yates conducted a dancing class in Woburn this season and at the recent pageant given in aid of Woburn Hospital.

AUSTRIANS MAY SHELL OWN CITY

TURIN, Italy, May 18.—Anti-war riots were resumed here at dawn today with redoubled violence. Martial law was declared at noon. Thousands of workmen now on strike joined the mobs shouting: "Down with the Government; we want no war." Seven thousand soldiers are now on duty here.

By HENRY L. PERRY.

Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

GENEVA, May 18.—Dispatches to Swiss newspapers confirm reports of a revolution at Trieste, stating that the situation is so serious that the Austrian commandant has threatened to have the city shelled unless the riots cease. Austrian warships are now lying in the roadstead with their guns trained upon the city.

The insurrection is said to have been led by Italian women, fifty-three of whom were killed and scores injured by gendarmes. At the height of rioting two powder magazines were blown up, thirty soldiers being killed.

Guns have been mounted on Opicina Hill, overlooking the city, and the authorities are proceeding to attack and destroy barricades thrown up in the suburbs.

BRITISH ROW OVER THE NAVY

By LAWRENCE ELSTON.

Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

LONDON, May 18.—The cabinet crisis became acute late this afternoon. Vacation and inspection plans of several ministers were suddenly cancelled after they had been called into conference by Premier Asquith.

Though rumors have been current for some time that gradual changes would be made, it is now reported that the storm centering about Winston Spencer Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, will result in radical and immediate changes.

Mr. Churchill was the first member called by Premier Asquith. He was followed in rapid succession by Attorney-General Sir John Simon, Lord High Chancellor Viscount Haldane, Home Secretary McKenna and Chancellor of the Exchequer Lloyd-George.

Differences have arisen between Churchill and Baron Fisher, First Sea Lord of the Admiralty, over Great Britain's naval policy. It was reported today that Baron Fisher would resign.

Underlying these differences is the sentiment that the loss of the Lusitania through inadequate naval protection had something to do with the clash. However, the real causes are unknown, but it has been known for some time that the Admiralty officials were not in agreement.

Both King George and Premier Asquith have intervened in an effort to reconcile the Admiralty heads, but without success, and Baron Fisher is remaining away from the Admiralty offices.

Reports have been current that the squabble may lead to the entrance of Unionists into the cabinet, thus bringing about a coalition ministry, and that Mr. Churchill may be given another post.

All the newspapers today devoted much space to the cabinet situation. The Globe [illegible] called upon the government to put Baron Fisher at the head of naval [illegible].

"Baron Fisher is a seaman and a genius. Mr. Churchill is but a clever amateur at last. It is a great [illegible] and must be met in a great way. Why not give the [illegible] control over the navy to men of experience, that Earl Kitchener, a soldier, has over the army?"

Find Body of Baby Victim of Lusitania

By International News Service.

QUEENSTOWN, May 18.—The body of a six months old baby that perished when the Lusitania was sunk was landed here today by the trawler Brock. The body was found floating about ten miles from the point where the liner sank. It has not been identified.

Lisbon Again Bombarded by Rebel Warship

MADRID, May 18.—Fresh revolutionary disorders in Lisbon and Oporto, as well as throughout the Portuguese provinces, have followed the shooting of Premier Chagas. He was shot four times while on his way by train from Oporto to Lisbon. Senator Freitas, his assailant, was riddled with bullets from the guns of gendarmes.

Premier Chagas will lose the sight of his right eye.

It is reported that an attempt was made to assassinate General Pimenta Y Castro, the ex-Premier.

The Portuguese battleship Vasco Da Gama, manned by rebels, has again bombarded Lisbon, damaging the national palace.

Dispatches from Badajoz state that the Portuguese government was trying hard to restore order, but that political feeling was running so high in the capital that the collapse of the Chagas ministry was considered imminent.

Suicide Note May Help Boy to Quit School

In the hope of winning his parents' consent to his ambition to quit school and go to work, William H. Manning, fourteen, living on Clapp place, Dorchester, suddenly disappeared yesterday, leaving a note saying he had "drowned himself from the bridge," according to the police.

Manning, who attended the William E. Russell School, returned home late last night after his parents had worried over his absence. Today the police declared the lad had won out and would soon go to work.

The "suicide" note was found in a house near Scarboro Lake, in Franklin Park. Last night the boy is quoted as having said to Captain Rooney of Station 11:

"I played baseball all afternoon on the Savin Hill playground. I wanted to go to work and I still want to go to work. I don't want to go to school any more. I am too big and too old to go to school. I'd sooner go to work than go to school."

NAVY GOES TO SEA FOR SHAM WAR

NEW YORK, May 18.—More than a million persons lined the Hudson River and occupied places of vantage on the tops of high building today as President Wilson and New York City bade farewell to the greatest fleet gathered for a presidential review.

Weather conditions were ideal. President Wilson reviewed the fleet from the naval yacht Mayflower near the statue of Liberty.

As each battleship passed the presidential yacht it fired a salute of twenty-one guns from its broadside. In the harbor tugs and other steamships shrieked good-by from whistles and sirens, and on shore the cheers rang out in salvos as the great ships, steaming at fourteen knots, passed out to sea to engage in manoeuvering and guard the [illegible] coast for two weeks.

OUTLINE OF REPLY TO NOTE

By HERBERT TEMPLE,

Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

LONDON, May 18.—That both the United States and England were responsible for the Lusitania disaster will be the assertion of Germany in its reply to the note of President Wilson, according to a dispatch received by the Exchange Telegraph Company today.

The correspondent states that the reply to the American note will be sent Thursday, and that it will place full responsibility for the heavy loss of life upon the American government as well as upon Great Britain.

The reply, the Exchange dispatch adds, will contain an emphatic declaration that Germany is to continue her submarine warfare.

ITALIAN GOVERNMENT RUSHES FINAL PREPARATIONS FOR WAR

will be no cessation in the labor of the departments until the Italian army is in the field and the navy off to battle.

A strange calmness settled over the city today. It was apparent that all believed the die had been cast and that only the formal declaration of war was necessary.

The German and Austrian ambassadors' conspiracy with Signor Giolitti and his parliamentary supporters has been thwarted only by the patriotism of the people and the King.

Just when it was in point of succeeding Baron Macchio, the Austrian ambassador, repaired to the Foreign Office Saturday evening and inquired of Baron Sonnino whether there was any truth in newspaper reports of accord between Italy and the entente powers, adding that to obviate dangerous misunderstandings an immediate official contradiction was desirable.

Sonnino replied that having resigned office he felt incompetent to deal with the subject, but as he once more is a minister it is probable the same question will be put to him today and the inevitable answer will be returned.

The consequence will be a demand by Von Macchio and Von Buelow for their passports and a formal declaration of war, which is expected shortly. The Italian crisis is now over and the Italian campaign against the Teutonic allies is about to begin.

How tenacious and resourceful the Germans are may be gathered from these two interesting details, for the accuracy of which I can vouch.

At the last moment when hope was fast vanishing, Prince Von Buelow had in reserve a trump card in the shape of further concessions to Italy. This fact was intimated today in the principal Germanophile organ.

Austria's refusal to transfer at once the promised territorial concession has, this paper alleges, been one of the principal obstacles to an accord, but now it goes on to say this hindrance can be removed and Austria, who is generous and considerate, will deliver up the provinces as soon as Italy signs the compact.

The other disclosure is equally instructive. It appears that Prince Von Buelow had undertaken, if Signor Giolitti returned to power, to make a more liberal offer than he had made to Baron Sonnino in order to justify the attitude of opposition of the dictator and restore his prestige. This hope, of course, is now dead.

The German scheme and Signor Giolitti's share in it will, as soon as it becomes known, give the coup de grace to the Italian ex-dictator.

Today the official green book will be issued containing a narrative of the negotiations.

"NO TIME TO GO UP IN THE AIR," SAYS WILSON AT THE 15TH FLOOR

NEW YORK, May 18.—When President Wilson arrived at the Hotel Biltmore he was escorted directly to an elevator. The car sped upward without a stop, and at the fifteenth floor the President turned to Dr. Cary T. Grayson and remarked quietly:

"Don't take us up too high, doctor; remember this is no time for me to go up in the air."

RUSSIANS CLAIM FOE IS CHECKED

By FRANCIS LAVELLE MURRAY,

Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

PETROGRAD, May 17.—Emperor Nicholas' birthday is being celebrated throughout the Russian empire today. Enthusiasm was added to the celebrations by the latest reports from the front which state that the Austro-German attacks are being checked all along the battle line from the Baltic provinces south, and that at several points the Russians are gaining ground in a counter-offensive. The following statement was issued at the War Office today:

"Since the morning of May 16 the battles in the Shavli region have continued to develop favorably for us. Our troops, acting around the [illegible] [illegible], dislodged the enemy and gained possession of their trenches, also capturing eight guns and 100 prisoners.

"Between the Pilica and the upper course of the Vistula hostile columns pursued our troops, who moved to a new front near [illegible] [illegible] and Sukhedniff.

"Our sudden counter attacks inflicted severe losses on the enemy's advance guards in the district between Vierzbnik and Opatow, as well as south of the latter, where impetuous attacks by our troops on May 16 drove back the enemy's leading columns more than six miles.

"On the San there has been a violent artillery battle from the mouth of the Wislok as far as Przemysl. In the direction of Stryj and Dolina the enemy delivered fruitless attacks against us, suffering heavy losses. We took several hundred prisoners.

"On the Pruth on May 16 the enemy delivered repeated attacks in close formation from Delatin and Kolomea, which we repulsed. We captured four rapid firing guns and threw our advance guards beyond the river."

EXPECT U. S. TO INSIST ON DEMAND

watching the German-American developments closely. While none of the chief officials will consent to be quoted, there is apparent a strong belief that the optimism reported to be prevailing in Washington is entirely misplaced, and that Germany will make no concessions whatever.

The Exchange Telegraph correspondent's dispatch follows:

"It is learned that the German reply to the American note will be sent Thursday.

"The reply justifies the attack upon the Lusitania. The captain of the submarine reports that he fired only one torpedo and that the second explosion on the liner was due to munitions which the Lusitania was carrying. The submarine, according to its captain, discharged the torpedo in such a way that the Lusitania would not have sunk if she had not been carrying explosives.

"Germany throws the responsibility upon England and America, holding that America permitted embarkation of passengers on board a vessel loaded with explosives.

"The note will conclude by saying that Germany will continue her submarine warfare, but expressing at the same time the hope that America will not fail to understand the necessity under which Germany is compelled to do so."

BEILEVE U. S. WILL INSIST ON ACCEPTANCE OF PRINCIPLE

By THEODORE TILLER,

Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—Interest of Washington officialdom today continued to be centred on the probable counter proposals the German government will make in reply to President Wilson's note on the sinking of the Lusitania.

The outstanding feature of the views as privately expressed by those close to the administration seemed to be that this government will not be satisfied with any suggestion from Germany that falls short of the acceptance of the principles of humanity and law as set forth in the President's note.

This view was based on President Wilson's speech in New York yesterday, when the chief executive set up a high standard of moral policy for this country. The speech was viewed here as an indirect answer to suggestions of a bargain with Germany.

There was a strong belief among officials, however, that while the thought of arbitration might not be entertained an agreement might be reached should Germany admit the legality and justice of the American argument and describe her submarine acts merely as reprisals of war.

This, it was believed, might open the way for a temporary agreement that the belligerents refrain from carrying contraband on passenger ships or give assurances that merchant vessels carrying passengers would not arm or resist capture at the hands of submarines.

In the event of such an understanding, however, the American government would in no manner recede from its original position that the German government must be held to "strict accountability" and that the right of Americans to travel when and where they please must remain unabridged.

One of the proposals expected from Germany is that the Kaiser would agree to safeguard American lives, but without interference with the originally announced submarine warfare. It is not believed this government will be satisfied with a mere promise of future carefulness on Germany's part, but will insist that Germany recognize that the attitude taken by the United States is just and its principle the only one the German government should hereafter observe.

Among the German propositions expected are the following:

That the United States compel a separation of passenger-carrying and contraband-carrying on the high seas.

That she obtain concessions from Great Britain in that nation's foodstuffs war on Germany.

That the submarine warfare of the Kaiser cease while the United States is negotiating with Great Britain.

That the matter of reparation in the Lusitania tragedy be submitted to arbitration.

That the United States will reject all these proposals unless they are coupled with an admission of the justice of the principle this country stood for in the recent note to Germany, is the general impression here.

N.Y. HARBOR STOPS WORK FOR FLEET

gray giants steamed in perfect alignment down the bay, the long black muzzles of the guns looming from the turrets beneath the rippling Stars and Stripes.

The battleships were led by the Wyoming, Rear Admiral Fletcher's flagship, which got under way promptly at 10:45 o'clock.

Three hundred and thirty-six saluting shots were fired from the sixteen battleships.

Strict precautions had been taken to prevent accidents in the Hudson River as the ships weighed anchor and departed. All ferries south of Forty-second street were compelled to abandon their schedules and all river craft had to keep clear of the main channel.

President Wilson spent the night upon the Mayflower and was said by his secretary, Joseph Patrick Tumulty, to be feeling excellent this morning. The President expressed pleasure when he learned that the weather had cleared. There was a slight haze, through which the sun struggled to break and a brisk breeze blew in from the sea, but there was no rain.

Just after the Mayflower took up her position, the naval yacht Dolphin, bearing government officials and members of the families of officers of the fleet, anchored just south of her.

It was said that the dinner to President Wilson on board the Wyoming last night established a precedent. It was the first time that the commander-in-chief of the army and navy ever dined aboard a warship with all the commandants and captains of a fleet like the Atlantic. Besides Rear Admiral F. F. Fletcher there were Rear Admirals Mayo, McLean, Boush and Coffman; Rear Admiral Usher, commandant of the Brooklyn navy yard; Rear Admiral Benson, chief of the bureau of naval operation; Secretary of the Navy Daniels and Assistant Secretary Roosevelt.

The review came to a close at noon. The last battleship in the line, the Louisiana, passed the Mayflower at 11:58 o'clock.

Three destroyers, which acted as an honorary guard for the Mayflower, chased all harbor craft away from the Presidential yacht just before the review began and stood by while the review was in progress.

The passing out to sea of the fleet gave the enormous uptown crowds a chance to see the biggest naval pageant ever staged here. There were four miles of battleships in the line. Sailors manned the rails of the fighting ships. Their playtime was over and the sight of the tossing waters of the Atlantic means the business of chasing down an "enemy" fleet which is supposed, for purposes of maneuvres, to be seeking a vulnerable point on the United States coast.

LINER ETONIAN NEAR LUSITANIA

rose about midway between us and the City of Exeter the periscope of a German submarine.

"Orders were given to put on forced draught. Every fireman was ordered into the engine room and the chief engineer hurried down there himself. Coal was piled on in mad haste. Our ship averages twelve knots, but in no time we were pulling her over the waves at a 14½ clip, which seemed altogether too slow.

"In the meantime the British warship had sighted the periscope and was doing a hustle herself. Fears of collision vanished. Both swerved and after a lively chase we eluded the submarine. We seemed somehow to outdistance her.

SECOND CRAFT SIGHTED.

"Soon after our wireless operator caught the message from the Narragansett, but we did not get the Lusitania's call. We had been steaming a half hour after escaping the first submarine, when, dead ahead, not more than a half-mile distant, we saw a second German submarine. This one's conning tower was out of water. More coal was piled on and top speed ordered, and swinging eastward we began a second flight. There were fifty or more of us on board, and a general cargo.

"It's needless to add our breath was tight for a spell. We didn't know when a pesky periscope would jut out of water and pepper us. But we were more fortunate than the poor Lusitania. We were astonished to learn the details of the horror. It made us realize what we had escaped.

"We didn't slacken our pace until far out of the danger zone. There must have been a flotilla of undersea fighters strung along the Irish coast in ambush for the Lusitania that day. When we saw two in such close proximity it is fair to assume there were many more.

FOOLHARDY TO TRY RESCUE.

"The British warship City of Exeter was soon out of sight. We felt that with the sea so sprinkled with submarines it would be foolhardy to go to the Lusitinia."

The majority of the Etonian's crew were loth to talk. But those who did placed their own and a British warship and the Narragansett within rescue distance of the Lusitania when the fatal torpedoes struck her. Cable dispatches from theother side quoting British Admiralty officials were to the effect that British destroyers were n the vicinity, but, evidently pursuing Admiralty orders, did not venture in the danger zone to offer relief.

Aronson Says He Didn't Club Wife With Bible

August Aronson, a Cambridge pedler, who was charged by his wife, Rose, with frequently assaulting her with the "family Bible," took the witness stand in Superior Court today and denied Mrs. Aronson's charges upon which she bases her plea for divorce.

Aroson denied:

That he flogged his wife with the Bible.

That he clubbed her with a milk bottle.

That he whipped her with a rubber club.

They were married in 1910. The evidence offered by Mrs. Aronson was that her husband opened a store on the wedding dowry presented by her father and that failure of the venture shattered domestic happiness. The court has taken the case under advisement.

2,000 KILLED BY SHELLS OF ALLIES

PARIS, May 18.—Heavy losses were inflicted by the allies' artillery before the Germans withdrew from the eastern bank of the Yser canal north of Ypres near Steenstraate and near Het Sas.

According to an official communique issued by the French War Office today 2,000 Germans were killed by the terrific bombardment of the allies' artillery.

North of Arras the Germans are still trying to regain some of the ground lost to the French.

The counter assaults of the Teutonic troops in that region are described by the communique as "violent." All these counter-attacks were repulsed by the French.

FIGHT ON WHITNEY WILL IS OPENED

The late Theodore D. Whitney, the Boston merchant, lived only three years with his wife, Mrs. Annie I. Whitney, from 1877 to 1880, and during a part of that time relations between the two were strained, according to a statement made by George L. Mayberry, counsel for the executor of the Whitney will, in addressing the jury today at the opening of the contest which Mrs. Whitney, the widow, is making against the instrument.

Mrs. Whitney had been left $20,000 outright and one-half of the estate in trust. Practically the other half goes equally and outright to Mrs. Amy H. Barker, a Brookline widow, and to Mrs. Carrie W. Myrick of Commonwealth avenue, Mr. Whitney's sister. After Mrs. Whitney's death her half of the estate in trust is to go to Mrs. Barker and Mrs. Myrick.

Mrs. Whitney in contesting the will raises three questions: whether the will was executed according to law, whether the testator was of unsound mind and whether the will was procured by fraud or undue influence of Mrs. Myrick.

TELLS OF EARLY FRICTION.

Mr. Mayberry said to Judge Fox and the jury in the Suffolk Superior Civil Court today:

"Mr. Whitney was married in 1877 and lived with his wife until 1880. We will show that during a portion of that period their marriage relations were unpleasant, reasons for which will appear; that from 1880 up to Mr. Whitney's death last September he never lived with her.

"When Mr. Whitney separated from his wife they had a son who was left with Mrs. Whitney. She brought him up and he was full grown when he died. Evidence will show that Mr. Whitney and his wife scarcely met after they separated and that, at the time of his son's death, Mr. Whitney was informed of it only through the newspapers.

"We will show that Mr. Whitney contributed to his wife's support and that of her son and that, at the time of his death, he was paying his wife $150 a month. She also had means of her own.

LIKE MEMBER OF FAMILY.

"Mrs. Myrick, his sister, was very close to him. We shall show that Mrs. Barker, while not exactly a relative, was very nearly that because Mr. Whitney had a brother, George D. Whitney, who is married to a sister of Mrs. Barker and lived next door to her in Salem, and Mr. Whitney was on close terms with Mr. Barker, when the latter, a Grand Army man, died in 1880.

"We will show that Mrs. Barker was looked upon as one of the family and was regarded by his father and mother and others as practically a sister to Mr. Whitney; that, before he died, Mrs. Barker told him she wished he would look out for his wife as well as possible when he died and that he, in reality, did this."

Brookline Store Robbed 3 Times

The store of the Brookline Provision Company, No. 147 Washington street, Brookline, was broken into today for the third time in a year. Unable to open the safe, the thieves, after robbing a Salvation Army mite box of a few coppers, destroyed $50 worth of provisions.

MRS. FRANK O. SMITH of Salem, bride in hospital romance.

A hospital romance which ended in a bedside wedding in the hospital in which the couple first met six years ago, became known today to Salem friends of Mrs. Bessie A. Morse, a Salem young woman. She is now the bride of Frank O. Smith, formerly of Bath, Me., who is now employed with a life concern in Charlotte, N. C.

The marriage took place in the Trull Homeopathic Hospital at Biddeford, Me., where the bride is recovering from an operation. It was in the Trull Hospital that the couple first met, when Mrs. Smith was in the training school for nurses there and Mr. Smith was a patient.

The couple had planned to wed in the North Carolina city. While the nurse was preparing her trousseau she was taken ill. The operation performed in Biddeford surgeons was successful, but the young woman's condition was serious, and Mr. Smith was notified. He hurried North and found out that it would be some time before she would be strong enough to travel South.

The bedside wedding was then arranged. The bride was propped up in her bed long enough to permit the ceremony to take place, Rev. Ward R. Clarke, pastor of the Saco Second Parish Unitarian Church, officiating. The witnesses were Mrs. Annie Smith, mother of the groom, Miss Lucy J. Potter, superintendent of the hospital, and Dr. J. Frank Trull.

The bride's private room in the hospital was decorated with flowers and evergreen, and in the informal reception that followed the ceremony many of the nurses took part.

Mr. Smith left Biddeford today for Charlotte. His bride will join him after she has completely recovered.

GREENE RESUMES ATTACK ON MAYOR

Robert Greene, real estate owner, former health commissioner and member of the board under Mayor Fitzgerald, today resumed his attack on Mayor Curley, declaring that the Mayor and Marks Angel, a real estate man, were working together to force the city to buy Prince street property for a sanitary station.

"Everything was serene and pleasant at last night's meeting of the North End Improvement Association," declared Greene, "until I brought up the matter of the proposed consolidation of the stations for the sanitary districts of the North and West Ends and Charlestown, to be located on a piece of property at the foot of Prince street. The Mayor then became excited and went for his coat and hat before launching a broadside at me.

MAYOR LEAVES HALL.

"It is my understanding that about four months ago the property now proposed for the sanitary station changed hands and was turned over by Abraham Miller of Revere to Marks Angel, Mayor Curley's friend.

"In the meeting I stated that such a station as proposed, located in the vicinity of the North End beach and playground, would be a nuisance and a menace to the health of the North End.

"Members of the Improvement Association of the North End agree with me in this and will without doubt vote against it at their next regular meeting.

"When I brought up this matter it was evident the Mayor wished to leave the hall and went for his hat and coat for that purpose, but before he did so he declared he was glad I had become interested in health, as it was the first time I had ever shown concern in that line and that I was the owner of some of the rottenest tenements in the city of Boston.

"He also said that I had voted at a hearing against a proposed law to make it illegal for tenants to occupy basements.

"I offered $1,000 for any one who would prove that I ever attended a hearing on this subject."

The Mayor had promised investigation of the charges against health inspectors, and was about to leave the hall at last night's meeting at the North Bennet Street School when Greene, near the door, stepped up and spoke against the proposed combination of the Charlestown and North End sanitary yards in a place between the old gas house and the North End Park.

Then the trouble started.

HITS AT GREENE.

"I am glad that Mr. Greene is at last interested in something which has to do with the public health," the Mayor said, stepping to the edge of the platform. "It is rather an unusual position for Mr. Greene to take, for I believe he is interested in more rotten tenement property than any other man in the city of Boston.

"He was one of those great, public spirited citizens who raised their voices for the repeal of the law against the habitation of basements."

Some one yelled "Liar!" Mayor Curley was cheered and hissed. He marched out of the room, passing close by Greene.

When Greene started for the platform to answer the Mayor's charges he was greeted with groans.

"I brought this question to the attention of the Mayor," he cried, "because I knew Mark Angell is the lessee of that land. I will give a check of $1,000, to be given to any charity he may name, if Mr. Curley can prove that I appeared at any hearing to oppose a law against the habitation of basements."

HISSES AND CHEERS.

As Greene descended from the platform there were mingled hisses, cheers and shouts. One man jumped from his seat and started to argue with Mr. Greene. It was some time before order could be restored.

The Mayor obviously came prepared for anything.

"I came here because I understood an editor of an Italian paper in this district has some specific complaints to make against the health inspectors," were his opening remarks.

"I have, Mr. Mayor," came from James V. Donnaruma, who was in the audience. "Mr. Mayor, I can file charges with you at your office in writing. I think I have the goods. I think an inspector has been receiving money under false pretenses for nearly twenty-five years."

6,500,000 CALLED BY GERMANY INTO ACTUAL WAR SERVICE, SAYS FERRERO

LOSSES OF 216,000 EACH MONTH SHOWN

By GUGLIELMO FERRERO,

The Eminent Italian Historian, Who Gives the First Authoritative Figures on Germany's Fighting Forces in the Field and in Reserve

How many soldiers has Germany? How many have been called under arms and how many can Germany call?

These are the questions most often discussed in Europe, inasmuch as they are of vital importance.

On the number of such soldiers depends in part, if not entirely, the duration and issue of the present war.

The most contradictory news has been circulated. Some have spoken of the ten or fifteen million men that Germany could arm. Of these, such persons report, only one-third have been called to the colors up to the present day. Others, however, assert that Germany has already used up its last resources or nearly its last. Is there any way of finding out the truth?

Chance has put into my hands some official publications which are confidential, as we say in bureaucratic phraseology. They concern the strength of the German army and are meant for their officers alone. Figures given in these publications are therefore worthy of attention, because issued directly by superior officers of the German army.

We shall endeavor first to gather the number of men Germany can call. Afterward we shall see whether there is a way to find out how many already have been called and how many will be called.

Everybody knows that the most important body in the German establishment is the permanent army. This body includes two classes under arms and the five younger classes of reserves. These seven classes were formed at the beginning of the war by 2,130,000 men. Basing an estimate on this figure, the directing body of the German army was composed of 1,917,000 well-trained men between the ages of twenty and twenty-seven. This is reckoning a loss of 10 per cent. The reason for these deductions will be apparent.

The "Ersatz Reserve" or "Reserve of the Reserve" include all German subjects between the ages of twenty and thirty-two who had not been called under the colors on account of physical defects or the excess of men already under arms. These twelve classes of the "Ersatz Reserve" could have supplied, when the hostilities began, 950,000 men. Deducting 20 per cent. from this figure, 760,000, not trained, were left.

2,146,000 MEN IN THE "LANDWEHR."

We have, then, the "Landwehr," subdivided into two parts, namely, the first and second. The first call includes all men who have been reservists, between twenty-eight and thirty-two years of age—five classes of trained men. The second includes the same class of men, between thirty-three and thirty-eight—six classes of trained men. The "Landwehr" of first call, roughly speaking, was made up at the beginning of the war of 1,200,000 men. The "Landwehr" of second call was made up of 1,580,000.

The directing body deems it advisable to deduct twenty per cent from the figure of the first call and thirty per cent from the second call.

We have, lastly, the "Landsturm" of the first and second call. The first call includes all men not trained who do not belong to the "Ersatz" Reserve. But it includes the young men of seventeen, eighteen and nineteen who belong already to the army by law, but are waiting to be twenty years old before joining the colors.

This section of the "Landsturm" now includes all the men born in 1895, 1896 and 1897. This section, it is stated, would not be more than 1,050,000 young men, and it is deemed probable a good portion of Alsatians, Poles and Danes would be deserters and that a greater portion than usual would be rejected on account of physical unfitness because called too young.

The "Landsturm" of first call includes, furthermore, all men between twenty and thirty-eight who, while fit for service, had not been called because they had the right to be freed from service for domestic reasons, contemplated by law. Finally, this section includes up to the age of thirty-eight all the men that have belonged to the "Ersatz" Reserve up to their thirty-second year. All these classes would give a total gross figure of 3,662,000 soldiers to be trained. This number the directing body reduces by 35 per cent., leaving 2,380,000 men.

The "Landsturm" of second call includes all who have rendered service and all who have belonged to the "Landsturm" of first call and of the age of thirty-nine and forty-five. This would mean seven classes, which, on paper, would total 2,880,000. This figure is reduced 40 per cent., leaving a net total of 1,728,000. Of these 1,044,000 would be trained and 684,000 untrained.

In conclusion, the men between the ages of seventeen and forty-five years who could be called under the colors in accordance with the German military laws were summarized by the directing officers, at the beginning of hostilities, as follows:

TRAINED SOLDIERS.
Permanent army	1,917,000
"Landwehr" of first call	1,040,000
"Landwehr" of second call	1,106,000
"Landsturm" of second call (partly trained)	1,044,000
Total	5,107,000

UNTRAINED SOLDIERS.
"Ersatz" Reserve	760,000
"Landsturm" of first call	2,380,300
"Landsturm" of second call (partly trained)	684,000
Total	3,824,300

And consequently:

Trained soldiers	5,107,000
Untrained soldiers	3,824,300
TOTAL	8,931,000

And thus it will be seen that, in round figures, Germany could have depended upon 9,000,000 soldiers, five million of which were trained and four untrained.

HOW MANY CALLED?
HOW MANY HAVE FALLEN?

How many of these soldiers have already been called under the colors? How many have already been put out of commission?

At the beginning of August the German government called under arms the permanent army and the Landwehr of first call—altogether a little less than 3,000,000 men. From these were taken the armies which, in August and September, endeavored to force the forts barring the entrance into France, from Verdun to Belfort.

The other portion entered France through Belgium and Luxemburg, and was broken on the River Marne against the valiant French armies and the calm and determined genius of General Joffre.

Between August and September, however, the German government was already calling the Landwehr of second call, or 1,106,000 men. They raised the number actually in war to 4,000,000. At that call all the men between twenty and thirty-eight who had been trained were under the colors. Immediately after, Germany found out that they were not sufficient. Then the Landsturm, mostly men beyond forty years, were called. These men were not trained.

Between October and November the government called the "Ersatz" Reserve, or another 760,000 men. On January 1, 1915, the government called the entire class of 1895, between 400,000 and 500,000 young men. Let us assume this class produced 450,000. They, with the 760,000 mentioned, comprised an available 1,200,000 added to the four millions already called.

This is not all. Between January and February the German government called other classes of the Landsturm first call, namely, that portion made up by citizens who had not seen service, and all classes down to 1883, including the men of thirty-two years. These are put at 900,000 men.

OUT OF 9,000,000
6,500,000 CALLED.

We have reached in this way a total of 6,000,000 men under arms up to the end of February. We should add the Landsturm of second call, which has been recalled in several districts.

It is very difficult to figure to a nicety the number of men recalled. An Italian newspaper man, Mr. Mariani, of Il Secolo, after a very careful study, puts this number at 450,000. This would give a total of 6,500,000 men.

After the call of the Landsturm of first call in February we have no other record of further recruiting. I am led to the belief that Germany, out of 9,000,000 has called 6,500,000—a tremendous endeavor.

How many men did Germany lose during the first eight months of fighting? How many are still able to fight?

It is difficult to estimate the German losses, although the government publishes the lists of dead, wounded and prisoners. These have been published with great delay during the last few months, and do not specify whether the wounded will be able to resume fighting. Nor do they mention the men who are ill.

However, in an official report of the French for March it was asserted Germany had lost, without considering wounded and ill who had returned to fight, up to the end of January, 1,300,000 men, or an average of 216,000 men a month.

The French authorities have always been very conservative, and, so far as possible, exact. Therefore we can trust their figures.

Taking the same figure for February and March, the Germans lost in the eight months of war, 1,700,000 men. To this total should be added the sick soldiers and the men sent home to lay occupations, such as men whose employment on railroads, in ammunition factories, etc., was necessary to the conduct of the war. A conservative estimate of such men would be 500,000.

There would thus be under arms now 4,300,000 men. This includes all the men at the front, those policing the interior and the contingents at present being trained preparatory to going to the front.

How many of these 4,300,000 are able to fight? To answer this it would be necessary to know what portion of the class of 1895, called on January 1, and of the classes of the Landstrum of first call, recalled between January and February, are now qualified. On this point I have been unable to gain any information.

However, this is only a question of a few weeks or months, because during war military instruction is given in a very short time. We can, therefore, safely assert that if Germany has 4,000,000 trained men in a short time she will have a smaller number, because meanwhile the number of men at the front decreases.

The difference, however, will be very slight. In other words, Germany at present and during the coming months will have on the fields from 3,000,000 to 4,000,000 men, mostly between the ages of twenty and thirty-two.

Will Germany be able to increase this number? We can surely answer in the negative.

It is true that Germany has available another 2,500,000 men out of the 9,000,000 who can lawfully be called. But when it is considered what kind of men will make up these 2,500,000 men it is readily understood that they could be used only to fill the vacancies in this enormous army or policing the interior. In fact, they include the classes of 1896 and 1897, six classes of the Landsturm of first call and what is left of the Landsturm of second call—all men over forty years.

In fine, these men would all be either too old or too young. It seems improbable the government will call during the present year the men of eighteen and nineteen years.

The classes of the Landsturm of first call not yet called represent a better element because younger. However, according to directing officials, these classes could give only 750,000. They will constitute a good reserve—the last—to fill the vacancies that fire and disease will create in the army.

This is, in figures, the synopsis of the enormous strain Germany has undergone in this terrible war. The conclusion is that Germany, having already called 6,500,000, has never had, and never will have, more than 4,000,000 combatants, when the destruction of life, so rapid and so appalling, is considered.

But Germany can keep such a force, or a slightly smaller force, for several months to come.

The German forces would only decrease if the war should last until the end of 1915 and later, and the effect should be as deadly as in the past. Seven or eight months from now, when the six older classes of the Landsturm of first call will also have been exhausted, Germany will remain with the classes of 1896 and 1897 only—the young men of eighteen and nineteen.

If other causes do not intervene to counsel peace, Germany, therefore, still has enough men to pursue doggedly its war on the two fronts for several months.

Germans assert with glee they do not fear the new English army because it will be composed of improvised soldiers.

That surely is true. But the Germans are hiding the fact that they are now in the very same fix. The new German contingents are composed of soldiers sent to fight after a few months of rapid training, very much like English soldiers.

How to be Slim and Attractive

If you are one of the many who suffer from obesity you know only too well the humiliation and discomfort one suffers when they are too fat. The cause of obesity is undoubtedly due to faulty assimilation. Too much of your food is turned into fat and too little into strength and vitality. To correct this eat sparingly of starchy foods and get from any good druggist a few oil of korein capsules and take one after each meal and one before retiring at night.

Weigh yourself once a week and note what a pleasant and reliable method this is for removing superfluous fat from any part of the body.

It costs little, is absolutely harmless and I am sure a week's trial should convince anyone that it is unnecessary to be burdened with even a single pound of unsightly fat.

Errors of living, among which coffee-drinking is one of the most common, has stirred the New York Health Department to prepare a booklet of suggestions for indoor workers, and among other wise bits of advice this booklet says:

"Bracers are harmful. This applies to the use of tea, coffee and alcoholic beverages."

Sound advice!

All over America, for years, coffee drinkers, indoor and out, prompted by their own feelings and enlightened by science, have gotten rid of coffee troubles by changing to

POSTUM

Postum, made of choicest wheat and a small portion of wholesome molasses, tastes much like the finest Java, yet contains no caffeine (the harmful drug in coffee) nor any other harmful element.

Postum comes in two forms:

Instant Postum—the soluble form—is prepared in the cup. A teaspoonful in a cup of hot water makes a delicious drink instantly. 30c and 50c tins.

Both kinds are equally delicious, and the cost per cup is about the same.

ATTRACTIONS OF THE WEEK AT THE THEATRES OF BOSTON

St. James Theatre.

The St. James patrons were treated to one of the best shows of the season yesterday. The headliner honors were given to Charles Leonard Fletcher, who offered his original character studies. Mr. Fletcher made a decided hit. Others were the Roland West Players in a new comedy playlet entitled "Bryant 2564" which had many funny situations.

MAJESTIC OPENS SEASON OF STOCK

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

With the opening of the Majestic as the home of stock productions you may safely consider Summer and rising temperature as immediate possibilities. It has always been so—at least for several seasons—and the Lonergan players, now comfortably housed at that theatre, doubtless hope that prosperity as well as straw hats will be the rule before the week is ended.

If ordinary signs count for anything Mr. Lonergan and his band of willing workers in the cause of dramatic art should repeat the successes that have preceded them at the Majestic, for the opening performances yesterday indicated a sound policy and a sane drama. If the weeks that are to come show as much merit as that exhibited yesterday, when "Bought and Paid For" brought Lily Cahill back to Boston, there can be little doubt of the future.

LILY CAHILL RETURNS.

The matter of selecting an opening play is always a perplexing question to managers who embark upon enterprises similar to that Mr. Lonergan is now facing. More than one stock season has been wrecked by a poor start, and if there is any consolation in a wholesome beginning there should be no complaints at the Majestic today.

The return of Miss Cahill gave playgoers something tangible upon which to pin their faith and hopes in the new company. She gave "Bought and Paid For" the benefit of a personality that was both pleasing and familiar. With her in the cast you could, at least, feel some slight acquaintance with the company, although for the most part the players were strangers.

In the role of Virginia Stafford, Miss Cahill was so much at home that you could hardly believe the performance belonged to the stock classification, with the limitations that are popularly supposed to accompany such productions. She supplied the brightest moments of the performance in an artistic sense, although the author had done so well with the role of James Gilley that Eddie Phelan had no trouble in keeping close to her.

GAVE ENJOYMENT.

While it is true that George Broadhurst never wrote a more actor-proof part than that of Gilley, Mr. Phelan is entitled to a full share of credit for extracting from it every ounce of fun it contained. Amy Ricard gave Fanny Blaine a human touch that sparkled with good humor. Mr. Lonergan played the millionaire, Stafford, with an easy assurance that lacked but little to make it convincing.

"Bought and Paid For" gave enjoyment to two large audiences, which furnishes the best proof that the right kind of plays will attract enthusiastic public support.

Globe Theatre.

Marcus Loew has made good his promise and has given to his Globe patrons the best feature which he personally selects from his entire circuit. Heading the big bill yesterday was E. K. Emmet, with Mary E. Ryan, in a thrilling drama of home life entitled "The Strongest Tie." The Leo Feist entertainers featured the latest song hit entitled "When the Lusitania Went Down."

Want Pink Cheeks—Red Lips?

Some unfortunate men and women are prone to wonder why some of their friends are blessed with an abundance of color—pink cheeks and red lips—while theirs are always colorless. The reason for this last named condition is—there is not enough red blood corpuscles in the blood—under a microscope the blood is thin and watery. The flesh is flabby, too. Well-known physicians assert that the regular administration for several months of three-grain hypo-nuclane tablets will greatly improve the color, add to the weight, make the cheeks pink and the lips red and in general be very beneficial. For self-administration, obtain from any of the best apothecary shops.—Advertisement.

CAROLINA WHITE STAR AT KEITH'S

Carolina White, late prima donna of the Philadelphia and Chicago opera company, who is making her first tour in vaudeville, is the headliner at Keith's this week. She has a superb voice and was heard to advantage last night in an aria from "Robert le Diable," besides Italian and English songs, concluding with "Annie Laurie," which was generously applauded.

The songstress was accompanied by Hector McCarthy, who gave an excellent performance of a Goddard selection, outside the bill of songs.

The bill at Keith's this week contains some novelties and is entertaining as usual from start to finish. It opens with motion pictures of the high school oarsmen of Greater Boston, who compete for the B. F. Keith rowing trophy on the Charles river May 18 and 20.

Booth and Leander put on a new bicycle act, which has some clever comedy besides a skilful and daring bit of riding. Harry and Eva Puck have a singing, dancing and playing act, including a melodious song written by the male part of the sketch. A Floradora parody is a hit in this number. Moran and Wiser have a novel specialty which furnishes a good share of the entertainment.

Lew and Mollie Hunting contribute some singing, dancing and conversation through the medium of a scene laid at Reno, the feminine party of the pair showing incidentally some very graceful and catchy clog dancing.

Tameo Kajiyama, carded as "the ambidextrous Japanese writing marvel in his calligraphic exhibition of psychological interest" does some remarkable blackboard writing, during which he displays rare powers of mental concentration and some phenomenal feats of simultaneous writing.

Ward Brothers, "two English Johnnies from the Winter Garden" are a droll pair in their "silly ahss" stuff. Will Rogers, the old cowboy comedian, produces some clever roping with a running fire of comic monologue on the side, and the Five Nightons conclude the program with some classic posing which is very well done.

Park Theatre.

One of the best bills of the year was presented at the Park Theatre yesterday. When one looks over the very superior program made up of the very latest released photo-plays, which included for the headliner, Elsie Janis in "Betty in Search of a Thrill," a five part play that was intense from the start; Clyde Fitch's "The Moth and the Flame"; Charlie Chaplin in the two part riot, "The Champion"; The Park Topical Review, and the Paramount Travel Series, it is easy to understand the popularity of the house. The music was in keeping with the general excellence of the bill, and consisted of the Park Concert Orchestra, and the Irving Berlin Serenaders.

Modern Theatre.

"The Devil," a remarkable photo-adaptation of Franz Molnar's great success in five parts is the feature attraction for this week at the Modern theatre. It is elaborately and handsomely produced in every detail. Bessie Barriscale assumes the responsibility of making the principal feminine role effective on the screen. The rest of the bill includes the second installment of "The Goddess," with Anita Stewart and Earle Williams.

Exeter Street Theatre.

"Captain Courtesy," with Dustin Farnum as the star, was exhibited at the Exeter yesterday. It is a thrilling story, in five parts, of the Mexican occupation of California, 1840-6, and is on for three days. The last part of the week Blanche Sweet, is the leading light in "The Captive," a five part Lasky production.

Plays That Remain.

"A Pair of Sixes" began its last week at the Wilbur last evening. There are seven more performances in which you may see this merry farce.

"The Last Laugh" entered upon a new week at the Cort Theatre last evening. There are many amusing complications in this newest play by Paul Dickey and Charles Goddard.

* * *

"The Birth of a Nation" shows no abatement of public interest and the Tremont Theatre is crowded at every performance. The new week began yesterday, brought out two [illegible] capacity audiences.

Next Week's Bills.

George Nash, in "The Three of Hearts," will be the attraction at the Wilbur next Monday.

"Alias Jimmy Valentine," with H. B. Warner, will be the offering at the Majestic next week. The Lonergan players will assist Mr. Warner.

John Craig will present "Seven Keys to Baldpate" at the Castle Square Theatre next week.

Waldron's Casino.

Jake Goldenberg's "The Gay New Yorkers" are at Charlie Waldron's Casino all this week supplying just the sort of a merry show, with many pretty girls, that the patrons of this house seem to demand and thoroughly enjoy. Manager Waldron has always believed that an entertainment can be kept clean, even though it is of the light, burlesque order, with plenty of singing and dancing and beautiful costumes and attractive scenes, and this is the policy of his house.

Orpheum Theatre.

A show full of vaudeville features was presented to the Orpheum patrons yesterday. Among the headline features was the return engagement of Eddie Foyer, who held the stage for fully 20 minutes in his offering. Others were Ed Ford's Dance Review in a novelty dancing specialty, which scored heavily.

Howard Athenaeum.

Fun of a most humorous nature held sway at the Howard Athenaeum yesterday where Violet Mascotte's "Bungalow Beauties" presented a line of mirth seldom equalled in that house. All the favorites were seen in the lineup and in their new and natty attire displayed their talents in good measure. In the continuous bill were seen, "The Cop," a dramatic sketch; Dave Manley, in "Running for Office," and several others.

'NEARLY MARRIED' BY CRAIG PLAYERS

Edgar Selwyn's famous comedy farce "Nearly Married" was presented at the Castle Square Theatre last evening by the John Craig Players.

There was a large audience which seemed to be quite carried away by the ludicrous situations. Judging by the volume of laughter "Nearly Married" made a popular hit. It is a farce noisy in its action and full of comedy in its downright kind.

In the play a couple who are in the process of being divorced meet in the public room of a New York hotel to begin married life again. They elope. The wife's brother, who is also the lawyer, comes in afterward [illegible] that the divorce decree has been signed by the judge and they are no longer married.

The young lawyer is the villain of the play. He is robbing his sister of a fortune and is also the one who started all the trouble. They have eloped, thinking they are married. Therefore they must be overtaken. The lawyer and the friends of the couple pursue them. A young woman has been paid to appear in the case also gives chase. They are overtaken at an inn, where the last two acts take place. There is a series of misunderstandings and accidents, including a garage fire. Of course the divorced couple finally disappear in the direction of Jersey and a minister.

William Carleton has won a great reputation as a leading man with the Craig Players and last night did splendidly. Augusta Gill got some real comedy out of the divorce specialist. James Seeley was an exceptionally funny justice of the peace and Dudley Hawley as the lawyer brother made a good impression. Doris Olsson played the part of the divorced wife with skill, while Alfred Hunt as a Hindoo prince was all that could be expected.

Among others deserving mention are Mabel Colcord in the role of Nora, Morrill Morrison as a chauffeur and Mabel Crane as the hotel page.

Cabaret and Dancing Now in Full Swing at Pemberton Inn

Pemberton Inn, the [illegible] of Greater Boston's [illegible], has opened for the season and gives Nantasket and Hull another institution where the modern cabaret will dispense music and frolic in large measure.

Pemberton Inn has become the property of George A. Dodge, who owns Paragon Park, and Edward D. Smith, manager of the Shubert, Wilbur and Majestic theatres. With Paragon Park at one end and Pemberton Inn on the tip of the peninsula that forms the town of Hull, it will be seen that the seeker of entertainment who ventures into that region is going to find it hard work to escape through Dodge's invitation to stop over and see the fun.

The formal opening of Pemberton Inn last Saturday night brought out a mid-season crowd, most of whom sang with the singers and danced with the dancers. The usual recreation features that make shore resorts popular will be found at Pemberton, the cabaret program approaching a good sized vaudeville bill. You may dance, too, if your feet feel that way about it.

The improvements of the Pemberton Hotel and Inn property represent an outlay of many thousands of dollars by Messrs. Dodge and Smith and include not only a remodeling of the buildings but the laying out of attractive grounds.

REGATTA WEEK AT BOSTON THEATRE

Regatta week at the Boston Theatre opened yesterday afternoon with hundreds of high school boys and girls present. The idea of the week's performance, which is made up of a series of classic and famous films introducing leading movie stars, is in honor of the high school boys of Greater Boston who will compete on the Charles River today and Thursday for the B. F. Keith Interscholastic Rowing Trophy.

[illegible]

One of the feature pictures this week introduces Mme. Olga Petrova, the sensational dramatic star, in the leading role. The popular actress plays the part of Martha Redmond in "The Heart of the Painted Woman." Another stage favorite making a first appearance on the screen in Boston is Billy Reeves, the famous comedian who plays the comedy role in "The Substitute," which keeps the audience in one continual laugh for twenty minutes.

The most startling picture of the program is of a storm at sea taken from the deck of a battleship and showing a torpedo boat at the mercy of the waves. This picture was made by chance and probably never will be duplicated. Another set of the wonderful Edward Salisbury wild animal pictures is shown.

The Boston Fadettes continue on the bill and have a new musical program.

Mary Pickford and Charley Chaplin afford pleasure in their [illegible] offerings.

Olympia Stock Makes Big Hit

The patrons of the Scollay Square Olympia witnessed one of the best shows of the season yesterday. The Olympia Stock Company, Walter, Rowan and Barrett in the intensely dramatic musical playlet, "The Coward," scored heavily. Other features included the Portland Opera Company, [illegible] Leclair and Lorraine in a dramatic number, Kellar and Curtis in songs and dances, Brooks and Harris in a novel singing offering and the Creighton sisters.

Bowdoin Sq. Theatre.

[illegible] was the feature yesterday at the Bowdoin Square Theatre in a thrilling moving picture entitled "Sins of the Parents." This proved to be a powerful white slave subject. There were also several live vaudeville specialties.

You Get a Double Pleasure by Reading "THE GODDESS" Here and Then Seeing It in the Moving Pictures

THE AMERICAN'S MAGAZINE PAGE

"THE GODDESS" By GOUVERNEUR MORRIS and CHARLES W. GODDARD

By Gouverneur Morris
and
Charles W. Goddard

Copyright, 1915, by the Star Company.

"IF you are determined to push on to New York, you will," said Tommy.

His quick ears caught the sudden appetizing cluck of a partridge.

"Let's see if we can get that fellow!" he exclaimed. "You sit down and rest yourself, Celestia. Nobody hunts much in these woods, and the birds are tame as chickens."

She sat down and leaned against the stem of a birch, her breath coming and going quickly, her great eyes following every movement that Tommy made.

But Tommy's first move was really the opposite of a move, for he stood as still as he could and listened. Now a partridge or a ruffed grouse, if you give him his right name, is a born ventriloquist.

First the partridge clucked to the right of Tommy, then to the left; then in front of him and then back of him. Tommy walked a few paces and once more stood still and listened. This time the clucking came from directly overhead, and Tommy looked upward in the dense branches of a young spruce tree, and after so looking for a few moments suddenly smiled. And although she did not know what Tommy was smiling at, Celestia smiled, too.

Having located the partridge, Tommy "assembled" his trout rod, and, with the end of the line, made a running noose. Then he began very quietly to poke the rod up among the branches of the spruce tree. An interested clucking attested to the fact that more eyes than Celestia's were on Tommy.

Tommy, his right hand clasping the butt of the rod, his thumb bracing the rod, reached gradually higher until his arm was extended to its full length. He added a few inches to his reach by standing on tiptoe. But even this was not enough. So Tommy bent his knees a little and then jumped.

Before his feet regained the earth a frightful squawking and flapping arose in the spruce tree, and then there was dragged from it what looked like a pinwheel going at top speed.

Hunger is the most cruel tryant in the world. Tommy's thumb sought and found the base of an egg shell; there was sharp scrunch, one last wild whistling of the pinwheel, and then there was one rock grouse the less in the North woods.

But Celestia looked pained now and troubled.

"It has wings like an angel," she said, "only darker."

Tommy was just going to say: "It's got whiter meat than an angel," but stopped himself in time, and changed to:

"Even people who come here to make the world better, Celestia, have to eat."

And he slipped the dilapidated bird into his pocket.

A few minutes later they reached Tommy's camp, and after he had given Celestia a cupful of spring water he cut fresh balsam boughs and made a thick mat for her to rest on, and rolled his coat and some other odds and ends into a pillow, so that she could watch him make the fire and do the cooking.

In the midst of this he remembered that she was suffering from sunburn, and he made her bathe her face in a lotion that smelt of camphor and nitre and which burnt a little and then felt cool.

For lunch they had tea, biscuits (one of Tommy's most lamentable culinary failures) and the partridge. Cooked, he no longer looked like the victim of murder, but very beautiful and appetizing.

Celestia ate her full share and then lay back on her balsam boughs and watched Tommy fill and light a pipe.

"Why do you do that?" she asked. "Wasn't the partridge cooked enough?"

Tommy narrowed his eyes at her and for some moments didn't answer. Then he said: "I don't know what to make of you at all. First you say you come from heaven and act as if you did, then you talk and act like a regular girl, then you pretend that you never saw a man smoke before. And then—what are you trying to do to me, anyhow? Is that really the only dress you've got in the world? Do you always wear a golden band around your hair with stage jewels in it?"

And then suddenly a light dawned on Tommy, and he smote his thigh in applause of his own cleverness.

"I know what you are," he said. "You're the queen of the movies. You're up here staging a show, and you got bored and let me run off with you for a lark. Professor Stilliter has something to do with the scenario. The heroine is supposed to be a little looney. That's you Celestia—and you're practising all the time on me. Well, thank heaven, it's only acting. Why, I really thought you were mad as a hatter!"

"No," said Celestia, "I'm not in the least angry. But I'm sure I don't know what you mean, but I like you when you get excited and talk fast and your eyes smile. It rests me."

Tommy shook his head at her and smiled reprovingly.

"You can't keep on fooling me," he said. "Come, now, what's your real name?"

"Celestia," she said.

"All right, if you don't want to tell me yet; it will keep, it's bound to. But tell me then, are you"—he hesitated and blushed. "I'd really like to know. You see I'm rather crazy about you. You're not Mrs. somebody or other, are you?"

The embarrassed smile froze on his lips. He leaped to his feet and stood listening. Faint and clear, sounding cheerful rather than ominous, there rose to them from the valleys below a baying of dogs. Tommy had gone once with a posse of deputy sheriffs to see how a murderer is hunted down with the bloodhounds.

Whole scenes of that pursuit flashed through his mind, and he knew that the baying, which now sounded in his ears, was not that of deerhounds running out of season, but bloodhounds following a human trail.

He climbed swiftly to the top of the Hub and stood listening, his field glasses glued to his eyes.

A glimpse of two bloodhounds and four men, one of whom was Stilliter and another a full-blooded Indian, crossing an open space, recently crossed by Celestia and himself during their unhurried escape and in the same direction, brought Tommy down from the Hub in a great hurry.

By CORALIE STANTON and HEATH HOSKEN

LADY WARREN'S smile died. "Poor Eva's not up to the mark!" she said, with unaccustomed gravity. "I don't know what's the matter with the child."

"But I saw her yesterday afternoon," interrupted the artist. "I thought she looked particularly fit."

"Well, all I can say is that she came home yesterday looking very seedy. Her father said she had eaten something that disagreed with her at some tea shop in Bond street, but then you know how Lady Squire is about diet, don't you?—and she seemed so queer all yesterday evening. I was quite worried about her. She went to bed about nine, complaining of a headache and sick feeling, poor child; and I saw her about midnight, and—well, she had quite broken down, Noel. She was positively hysterical. I couldn't make her out. I wanted her to see a doctor, but she wouldn't hear of it, and insisted that she would be all right in the morning."

Crawley bit his lip; his cheeks flushed. What a brute he had been!

"Well, I was so nervous about the child," Lady Warren continued, "that I couldn't sleep for thinking about her and went to her room about three this morning. And, would you believe it, Noel, that tiresome girl had not even gone to bed! She was sitting up staring out of the window like a stark, raving lunatic.

"Of course, I had to be very firm. I was, and didn't leave her until I tucked her up in bed. Well, this morning when I called in at her room on my way down to breakfast she had gone, and the servants tell me she went out for a walk about eight o'clock without having any breakfast. So you can understand how worried I am."

"Quite," answered Crawley grimly. "But hasn't she come back yet?"

Lady Warren shook her head. "No," she said: "I only wish she had. Oh, I do hope no harm has come to her."

"Where is Sir Squire?" asked Crawley.

"In the city."

"Does he know of this?"

"Oh, yes; but you know Squire, and what he thinks of us women. I don't suppose he'd trouble much if he heard the poor child had been run over and killed. He has no feelings, you know—none at all."

"I think I'll go out and try and find her," said Crawley. His voice sounded husky. There was a grim expression about his handsome face; his dark eyes gleamed angrily.

"Oh, no, you won't, my dear Noel!" exclaimed Lady Warren. "You might as well look for a needle in a haystack. You've just got time to come with me in the electric. I'm going up Oxford street and then back by Bond street. I've got such a lot of things I want to talk to you about.

"You mustn't take much notice of what I have been saying. You know how foolish I am about Eva. No one knows what that dear child is to me." Lady Warren became theatrically dramatic. Tears clouded her blue eyes—those eyes that were so like her daughter's.

Crawley groaned inwardly and would have had perforce to obey his dictatorial mother-in-law elect had not Eva walked into the morning-room at that precise moment.

"Good gracious, Eva, where have you been?"

Lady Warren rushed forward and seized her daughter's hand. "Why, child, you look positively ill! What is the matter? Noel, doesn't she look ill?" Her ladyship turned to Crawley with her favorite dramatic gesture, but he did not hear or notice her. He was looking at the girl.

Certainly Eva Warren did not seem well. Her usually rosy cheeks were pale, her eyes looked unnaturally large, and there were dark rims beneath them. She avoided his glance and his outstretched hand and looked at her mother.

"I'm feeling much better, dear," she said, almost boisterously and smiling with well-affected nonchalance. "Indeed, I feel quite all right again. I've had a long walk. It's a lovely day. Are you just going out?"

"Yes, dear; but surely you see who is here?" Lady Warren looked from one to the other in some bewilderment.

"How do you do?" said Eva, at last deigning to take Crawley's outstretched hand. She appeared to look right through the man, and spoke coldly, as if he were the veriest stranger.

Lady Warren's brow clouded. She gave Noel a swift look of inquiry and suspicion.

"I am sorry you aren't well," said Crawley awkwardly. For the moment he could think of nothing else to say.

"You haven't gone to Paris, then?" said the girl, and there was a touch of cynicism in her tone.

Lady Warren saved him from his embarrassed explanation by repeating vivaciously all that he had just told her. Eva listened much as she might have listened to news of some distant acquaintance. Then she turned, as if she meant to leave them, but her mother was quick to divine her intention, and also wise in her generation.

"I was just dragging Noel off to do some shopping," she said, "but I'll surrender him to you now, dear. Good-by, Noel! By the way, will you stay to lunch? We have a few people coming in. Half-past one. I shall be back in about an hour. Will you stay?"

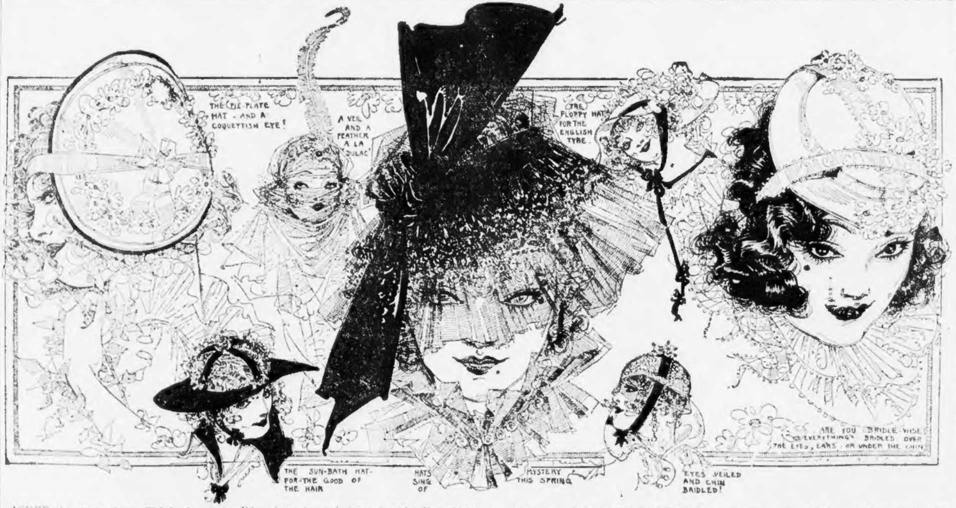
HATS

By NELL BRINKLEY

Copyright, 1915, by International News Service.



THE PIE-PLATE HAT - AND A COQUETTISH EYE!
A VEIL AND A FEATHER A LA "DULAC"
THE FLOPPY HAT FOR THE ENGLISH TYPE.
ARE YOU BRIDLE-WISE? EVERYTHING'S BRIDLED OVER THE EYES, EARS OR UNDER THE CHIN
THE SUN-BATH HAT-FOR-THE GOOD OF THE HAIR
HATS SING OF MYSTERY THIS SPRING
EYES VEILED AND CHIN BRIDLED!

I ASKED the cynic that. Thinking for once in his life he'd be flowery and turn me a neat glorification of girl-kind to pass on to you. But he didn't say it. Said he: "Why—girls are made of hats, and boots, and slippers, and things that smell sweet, and a bewildering number of hair-do's, and gloves (mitts, this year, I hear), and parasols, and smiles, and neck-fluffs, and silk stockings, and frocks as many as the stars that fly and wheel in the diamond-powdered bowl of the night sky! That's what girls are made of! Those things and something else undefinable that makes them adorable and desirable, in spite of the fact that they are cats, every one!"

Very well, then, here is what little girls are made of this Spring! I'll begin with hats, chapeaux, lids, bonnets—whatever they look like to you.

Hats! Where in the deepest, wildest, lonesomest, goldenest desert is the little woman who doesn't adore hats? And who ever had enough and would turn up her nose at another one?

This Summer hats are gems. They are as dainty as the Lady who lives on a Fan! They are bridled, almost all, either under your chin, or back of your ears, or around your hair, or above your eyes. And some of them have a manner of drooping far down over the eyes and nose and even the lips, with a brim of tulle or chiffon. And the eyes look out from behind it and say—what don't they say?

There are tiny little hats fitted on like a half of a cocoanut shell. There are soft, gardeny hats for the English type. You know—slim and tall, and pink as a blush-rose. There are little hats like saucers, smacked flat on the front of mademoiselle's head and tied down with a band of old-fashioned, watered ribbon.

And there is, oh, little picture hat, little hat made for the delight of the artist—he who "scratches for a living"—the little hat we must thank Lucile for, the Pie-Pan hat!

So this is one thing little girls are made of—Hats.—NELL BRINKLEY.

Do You Know That—

Although the diamond is generally regarded as the hardest of all substances, tantalum, a rare metal, although not one of the rarest, is harder. A thin sheet of it was once placed under a diamond drill worked day and night for three days. The only effect was a slight indentation in the tantalum and the wearing out of the diamond.

The first recorded appearance of mines as instruments of naval warfare was at the siege of Antwerp in 1585, when they were employed by the Dutch against the Spaniards.

On Russian railways telegraph poles are protected against decay by soaking them for several months before use in strong brine.

This Does More Than Remove Hair

Unlike pastes and rub-on preparations which only remove hair from the surface of the skin, this method devitalizes it. It robs hair of its vitality by attacking it under the skin as well as on the skin. Pictorial Review says: De Miracle, the original liquid depilatory, is "a boon to afflicted women." Only genuine publications of the highest character are quoted by us. Beware of so-called hair removers which are supposedly recommended through bogus quotations from so-called magazines which do not exist.—Advertisement.

When House Dresses Are Being Discussed

You will hear many different opinions as to what constitutes a perfect house dress. One person will claim that the quality of material and workmanship are of primary importance, another that style and simplicity are the essentials, while still others will say that ease and comfort are what make a house dress worth while.

All who are acquainted with the Baldwin Double Service House Dress agree, however, that in it they find a combination of all these qualities and consequently the best House Dress value. Besides this, Baldwin is the one House Dress that has no buttons, no hooks, just the snaps on the belt, and it's on. Sold by Dry Goods and Department Stores at $1.50 and $2.00. If your dealer can't supply you with a Baldwin, write Baldwin Garment Co., B. A., Holyoke, Mass.

No Reason for Straight, Stringy, Oily Hair
HAVE "STAY-IN" CURLS

If you curl your hair either with kid curlers or irons, always moisten it slightly first with Gloriol Wavoline. This is a clear, harmless liquid, which when applied to the hair causes the curl to remain a long time. You may dance all evening or ride all afternoon in the wind, and the curl will not come out, and you won't be worried "looking a fright with your hair all around you."

Gloriol Toilet articles are unexcelled and come in creams, face powder, astringent lotion and shampoo. All are guaranteed.

EXITS AND ESCALATORS — COR. FEDERAL AND ATLANTIC AVE. — IN FRONT OF SO. STATION — ON SUMMER ST. COR. ATLANTIC AVE.

Photo-diagram showing how Summer street has been excavated and Dewey square subway construction now completed under pavement over which many thousand daily pass.

By July 1, or earlier, it is expected the excavation work on the new $500,000 Dewey Square station of the $6,000,000 Dorchester tunnel, the last remaining link in Boston's great underground transportation system will be completed.

The work of finishing off the station proper will then be immediately started by the Boston Transit Commission, under whose direction the tunnel is being constructed. It is expected the station will be ready for use by early Fall. With its completion the Dewey Square station will be made a temporary terminal, pending the completion of the entire tunnel. The station when finished will be almost an exact replica of the Washington Street station recently opened.

Work on the section of the tunnel which includes the Dewey Square station was begun August 25 last, within two weeks after the bids on the project were opened. It has been pushed night and day ever since, the contractors encountering many unforeseen obstacles in the shape of gas, water and sewer pipes and underground electric wire conduits. Other equally troublesome obstacles were offered in the exceptionally heavy traffic which passes through Dewey Square every day of the week. There was also the problem of sheering up parts of the South Station and several other big buildings fronting on the square.

These handicaps have all been overcome by the engineers in charge of the job, however, and no further difficulties are expected to arise before the station is completed. The skill with which these engineering problems have been solved is best evidenced in that fact that throughout the entire job there has not been a single serious accident. This fact is considered quite remarkable on a job of this kind by the engineers in charge.

The station is the second in the new tunnel. In view of the great traffic to and from the South station it will be the most important one from a traffic standpoint on the whole line. Its completion will incidentally make the South station more convenient to the city proper than ever before.

The section, including the station, is known as Section D. It begins just below the Washington Street station and ends a little below the South terminal. It there connects with section E, the lowest link in the job, the section which will run under the Fort Point channel. Work on this latter section is shortly to commence.

The approximate cost of section D, including the construction of the station, is $700,000. The contractors, Hugh P. Nawn & Company, have taken out approximately 33,000 cubic yards of earth. On a daily average they have removed 325 tons. It is estimated that a ton has been taken out every five minutes since work on the job was commenced.

The station will be forty-four feet deep. It will be the lowest station in the whole subway system. There will be two platforms each 350 feet long. Over the platforms will be an upper-level, or "lobby." On this will be located the ticket offices, news-stands, etc. Owing to the great depth of the station escalators will be provided at all the entrances and exits. The station will be finished off similar to all others in the tunnel. The distinguishing color will be blue.

I WILL GIVE YOU A 50¢ BOX OF FACE POWDER FREE

As Explained Below for Introductory Purposes

I Will Lend You, Awhile, Free of Charge, My Three Large Courses of Instruction on

"HOW TO BECOME BEAUTIFUL, FASCINATING & ATTRACTIVE"

SIXTY years ago women were often faded, wrinkled and old at 25 or 30. But today, with the aid of recent discoveries by great specialists, a woman should look comparatively young at 50.

Age has become largely a question of keeping the muscles of the cheeks from sagging; of warding off the formation of wrinkles and marks of age, and keeping the skin smooth, soft and velvety.

Sagging facial muscles often entirely change the whole contour of a woman's face, giving it an extremely aged look. This is generally what causes friends to exclaim: "How old Mrs. B—— has gotten to look; she is only twenty-eight, but she looks more like forty!"

Incredible as it may seem, you cannot only ward off sagging facial muscles, but even after they have occurred it is possible to revitalize and stimulate them and thereby make one look much younger.

The old, half-dead outer layer of skin is another fruitful cause of an aged look. Not long ago Virgil of Paris found an absolutely safe and harmless process which helps to remove this old, half-dead skin so gradually that you cannot notice the change with the naked eye, permitting the new, fresh skin from underneath to take its place, which thereby greatly enhances the beauty of the complexion.

All the above and scores of other valuable beauty secrets, together with many valuable beauty-making formulas, are fully explained in my three courses of instruction on "HOW TO BECOME BEAUTIFUL, FASCINATING AND ATTRACTIVE."

These courses tell how you may almost instantly give yourself the appearance of being many years younger.

How to make yourself fascinating, charming and attractive.

How to whiten, soften, beautify and refine the skin.

How to beautify your eyebrows and eyelashes and thereby make your eyes more alluring.

How to make your hair beautiful, soft and fluffy and keep it in curl for practically a week at a time.

I will also send you absolutely free six packets containing six different colors of face powder, so that you may select the one best suited to your skin and complexion.

How to overcome a shiny nose.

How you may tell if the face powder or cream that you use is harmful to your skin and complexion; how to apply face powder so as to make it practically invisible and very adherent; how to use rouge so that no one can detect it.

How to give your neck a beautiful appearance; how to tone up a flabby skin; what to do for wrinkles and lines of age.

How to remove freckles and overcome enlarged pores of the nose and face.

How to overcome rough, red, chapped hands and keep them beautiful, soft and white, even when doing housework.

Methods used for building up sunken cheeks and sagging facial muscles.

How to round out the cheeks by raising the sagging muscles of the sides of the face, which give the face a square look and make a woman appear so old.

Hints to wives in regard to husbands. How to acquire a charming personality; how to dress economically and attractively, etc., etc.

I tell you the real secrets which I employed on myself and which were undoubtedly of great assistance to me in winning my two international beauty prizes.

SECRET OF MANY BEAUTIFUL COMPLEXIONS

"I consider Poudre Fascination and Poudre Petalias two of my most successful creations. If you wish a beautiful complexion and desire to keep your skin free from wrinkles and marks of age I advise you to try these powders."

Virgil

PARIS.

Both Poudre Fascination and Poudre Petalias are creations of Virgil of Paris, whose name is well known throughout France for his remarkable creations for preserving the beauty and youthful appearance of women and for beautifying their skins and complexions.

MANY ladies have used totally the wrong color and the wrong kind of face powder for years before discovering why they always have a shiny nose, a slick, greasy-looking skin, or a horrid "made-up" appearance.

With the marvelous silk-meshed twin face powders, Poudre Petalias and Poudre Fascination (six colors), you can obtain an individual face powder suited to every complexion and every texture of skin.

Poudre Petalias is a very fine, heavy, adhesive powder, especially for ladies with shiny noses, enlarged skin pores or a greasy, oily or rough skin.

Poudre Fascination is a very fine, light, specially adherent powder that is practically invisible on the skin. For ladies with soft or delicate skins and those who do not want a powder to show.

Many ladies prefer to blend the above powders by mixing them half and half or in other proportions to obtain an individual powder of their own just to suit their skins.

I WILL send you six packets containing six different colors of face powder mentioned above (including lavender—the marvelous new shade for evening use) absolutely free to every lady who writes for my courses of instruction. These six packets of powder are free to you to keep and use, no matter whether you desire to keep my courses, let me know and I will send you a regular 50c box of either of the above powders of your own selection to use in connection with my courses of instruction.

Do not decide as to whether you want my courses or not from the short description given in this paper, but send for them and look them over at my expense, then decide. The information you will obtain from reading them and the free six packets of powder which I send you with the courses will certainly far more than compensate you for your trouble in writing. Put your taste to the test!

Camel Cigarettes have a subtle flavor—unique but enticingly attractive—because they are a blend of choice Turkish and choice Domestic tobaccos. Quality and the blend produce a smoke that's remarkably smooth, fragrant and satisfying.

They're a 100 percent quality smoke; that's why you won't find premiums or coupons with Camels.

Put your taste to the test today!

Camels sell 20 for 10c. If your dealer can't supply you, send 10c for one package or $1.00 for a carton of ten packages (200 cigarettes), sent postage prepaid. If after smoking one package you are not delighted with Camels, return the other nine packages and we will refund your dollar and postage.

California Tours Contest Ends in 46 Days

It looks as though the AMERICAN would need one of the buildings at the Panama Fair to hold all the coupons turned in by those competing in its great California Tours Contest.

Although the Contest Manager had a staff of clerks counting votes long before yesterday, we had no idea that so many more would be poured into the office on the last day of the time allowed to turn in Series "C" coupons.

But extraordinary efforts are being made to have all the votes counted so that the standing of contestants may be published regularly beginning a week from next Sunday, May 30, when the first vote standing appears.

Meantime, every day brings the wonderful transcontinental trips nearer, and with Series "A," "B," "C," and half of Series "D" already over, there remain only forty-six more coupons to be printed.

All arrangements have been made for the tours. Everything in the nature of food, of accommodations, of side trips, of admissions to the Fairs at both San Francisco and San Diego, of hotel quarters, of sleeping berths, of Pullman chairs, of luncheons—all will be cheerfully paid for by the AMERICAN and all will be absolutely first-class. The guests of the Boston AMERICAN will get the very best of the best.

We have printed the itinerary—look over the hotels at which the tourists will take their meals en route. You will perceive at once that you have a directory of the most famous hostelries in the land.

As the time grows nearer, the magnificence of these trips comes more and more to the fore. Study the routes as outlined heretofore and you will agree that all your efforts cannot be too much to win one of these wonder trips.

HAYS CHARGES CURLEY WITH DODGING CENSORSHIP ISSUE

Senator Martin Hays of Brighton declared on the floor of the Senate, the balconies crowded with colored folk, that Mayor Curley had ample authority under the present law to stop "The Birth of a Nation," but dodged the issue.

"Mayor Curley knows he could stop the show," said Senator Hays, "and so do we. He was afraid to force the issue. He was afraid of the colored vote. And now he is putting it up to the Legislature, but I for one am not going to play his game for him.

"Mayor Curley could put his shears into the play at the Tremont, if he wanted to. It couldn't go on, if he wanted to say the word. He knows that he stopped 'Maternity' before it was given a public performance even and he could stop 'The Birth of a Nation' in the middle of a performance, if he dared."

Senator Hays made these assertions in the debate over the "Birth of a Nation" censorship bill, which was amended, in the face of stubborn opposition, and passed to be engrossed by a rising vote of fifteen to fourteen.

EMBARRASSES MAYOR.

This amendment removes the unanimous clause in the bill railroaded through the House by the Judiciary Committee and stipulates that a majority vote will prevail in decisions by the board in Boston in the licensing of photo-plays and revoking licenses for the production of improper shows.

The bill makes the Chief Justice of the Boston Municipal Court a censor with the Mayor and Police Commissioner, who are the only two censors under the present law.

Adoption of the amendment by the Senate is a victory for the colored people who opposed the bill. Making the decision of the censorship triumvirate depend on a majority instead of a unanimous vote, the amendment, if made a law, will greatly embarrass Mayor Curley. Under certain conditions his opinion could be ignored by the rulings of Police Commissioner O'Meara and Chief Justice Bolster of the Municipal Court, both of whom are Republicans, and both of whom are appointed by the Governor, and not elected.

MAY BE RECONSIDERED.

But engrossment of the amended bill by the higher branch does not necessarily mean adoption as a law. A motion to reconsider may be made in the Senate today. If this does not happen, the amended bill will be returned to the House for concurrence. In view of the fact that the House rejected by a large majority an amendment similar to that carried in the Senate, there are prospects that the bill may be swallowed up, as have been countless other measures, in the quicksands that lie between both branches of the Legislature.

In fact Senator Doyle of New Bedford and Senator Hays of Brighton bluntly asserted yesterday that the measure was a joker to fool the misguided colored agitators and that those backing it were aware of its worthlessness and were merely playing to the galleries in supporting it.

Senator Hays did most of the talking. He shouted in the course of his oratory:

"I am convinced that certain persons have been paid for this agitation and for their activity, in order that this photo-play may increase the profits daily pouring into its coffers."

The censorship discussion was the most important in connection with film legislation ever held in Massachusetts. It reflected the intense feeling and the conflicting purposes at work under the surface. Seven roll calls were taken. The sentiments of Democrats and Republicans were curiously shuffled. Senator Timilty of Roxbury was conspicuous because of the manner in which he arrayed himself against his colleagues and supported the Republican majority, led in this instance by Senator Bean of Cambridge, author of the amendment.

WOULD CRIPPLE BILL.

Powerless to stop the bill in the House, the colored forces decided that the only relief was to cripple the measure with the majority amendment. The rank and file of motion picture men were not interested in the bill, which is said at the State House to have been secretly backed by City Hall and openly supported by lobbyists for "The Birth of a Nation." It was the opinion of Senators Hays and Doyle, also Senator Sullivan of South Boston, that the present statute was better than the amended bill. This sentiment has prevailed among film distributors and exhibitors [illegible], but they are too busy [illegible] to secure [illegible] State censorship to bother much with a law that only affects Boston.

Senator James W. Bean of Cambridge said the amendment was rejected by such a few votes on Friday that he ought to renew it, with such a large attendance.

Senator W. H. Fay of Medford eulogized the colored race, alluded to the "dark pages of American history" and pleaded for equitable treatment of the negro. He said he had spurned the invitation of the "Birth of a Nation" management to attend the special legislative performance and had bought a ticket so as to be under no compliment to anybody. He stated that, although he tried to view the spectacle with a free and unbiased mind, he concluded that it belittled the colored race and therefore he [illegible].

Senator C. Augustus Norwood, chairman of the Committee on Judiciary, opposed the amendment and urged the adoption of the bill in its original form, adding: "All questions of fact are and should be determined by unanimous vote, and not by majority decision. That is the way verdicts are reached by the jury system and the same rule should apply here."

DOYLE GIVES WARNING.

Senator Doyle of New Bedford said: "If you adopt this amendment it will mean that there will be no law in the statute books this year, because the other branch of the Legislature will kill it. I have always been friendly with the colored race and am always eager to help them, and it is for that reason that I oppose this amendment, because it does not give them what they ought to have."

Senator Fay took exceptions to Senator Doyle's assertion that there would be no law in the statute books if the amendment were passed, and Senator Doyle replied:

"I made that assertion on the strength of ten years' experience in this Legislature. I know, and my brother knows and so does the Senator from Middlesex, that many measures die between the two branches. We know that only too often measures are supported for effect when it can be seen at the outset that nothing could come from them. It may be that I could gain political capital and support by taking a different view, but I wish to speak the truth and to remind the colored people that such a measure can bring them no relief."

Senator William J. Sullivan of South Boston defended his substitute bill to make the Mayor sole censor in Boston. He added:

"I offered that bill in good faith. I feel now that it would be much better not to divide authority, but to give the Mayor full power. This amendment is not to be compared with the present law. I have no axe to grind, but I feel that as an American citizen I should oppose a measure which would make it possible for two appointed officials to override the decision of the Mayor. Such an amendment would hold up the Mayor of Boston as a public goat."

"I wish to speak on behalf of the thoughtful citizens, both white and colored. I wish to make a protest against this amendment and the attempt of outsiders to tell us how we ought to run Boston. Mine is a plea for home rule. Boston is well able to govern itself without the suggestion or interference of Senators from other towns and cities. We don't need this law. There is law enough if it were used. This is nothing but an appeal to the galleries.

"Why should we be dictated to by the Senator from Cambridge, a two-by-four city, where more rum is sold in drug stores in a day than is sold in licensed Boston in a week? (Laughter). Why should we have special legislation for Boston? There is no demand or necessity for it. A few misguided colored people have been imposed upon."

RECOVERS HEALTH IN RECORD TIME

Abraham Swartz Is More Than Pleased at the Fine Results.

The word medicine is one of the most abused in the English language. There are certain medicinal properties just as necessary to health as the food we eat. Take for example the well known preparation Plant Juice. This famous stomach medicine contains medicinal components just as vital and essential to a healthy body as the elements of food that one partakes of at their daily meals.

A. SWARTZ.

Every day Plant Juice is proving this assertion as attested by testimonials of local people who have suffered for years from stomach, liver and kidney trouble, and that distressing and painful rheumatism.

The following statement was recently made by Mr. A. Swartz, who is owner of the Metropolitan Photo Studio at No. 255A Tremont Street and is a well known business man. Mr. Swartz was born and reared in Boston. He said:

"I have suffered from stomach trouble which took the form of indigestion for about two years. I bloated up with gas after meals and my tongue was always coated. I had dyspepsia and was nervous and restless in my sleep. I had dull, sick headaches, and my food laid like a hard lump in the pit of my stomach. My appetite was poor and nothing seemed to taste good to me. I wish to state for publication that I have been taking Plant Juice for about ten days and it is the only medicine that has really benefited me, for now all my headaches and pains are gone. I am simply feeling fine and enjoy all my meals. I certainly can recommend Plant Juice to anyone."

The Plant Juice man is at Liggett's Drug Co.'s store, corner of Washington and Avon streets, where he daily meets the local public and introduces and explains the merits of this remedy.—Advertisement.

Acid Stomachs Are Dangerous

Common Sense Advice by a Distinguished Specialist.

"Acid" stomachs are dangerous because acid irritates and inflames the delicate lining of the stomach, thus hindering and preventing the proper action of the stomach, and leading to probably nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble from which people suffer. Ordinary medicines and medicinal treatments are useless in such cases, for they leave the source of the trouble, the acid in the stomach, as dangerous as ever. The acid must be neutralized, and its formation prevented, and the best thing for this purpose is a teaspoonful of bisurated magnesia, a simple antacid, taken in a little warm or cold water after eating, which not only neutralizes the acid, but also prevents the fermentation from which acidity is developed. Foods which ordinarily cause distress may be eaten with impunity if the meal is followed with a little bisurated magnesia, which can be obtained from any druggist, and should always be kept handy.

SIMON VORENBERG, who resigns presidency of United Hebrew Benevolent Association.

SIMON VORENBERG RESIGNS AS HEAD

Simon Vorenberg has resigned the presidency of the United Hebrew Benevolent Association, his resignation to take effect at the next annual election of officers at the last of the month. Mr. Vorenberg, who has held the office for eight consecutive years, gave as his reason an unusual press of business which would prevent him from devoting the necessary time to the society.

The resignation was announced at a dinner given him by the other officers of the association at the Elysium Club in Huntington avenue. A number of speakers paid high tribute to the work done by the society through the influence of Mr. Vorenberg, especially the Rev. Dr. Harry Levi of the Temple Adath Israel; Judge A. K. Cohen, Vice-President; Harry [illegible], Treasurer; M. H. Goldsmith, Directors William Bloom, A. H. Beal, Carl Kaffenburgh, S. Frank Frankenstein, H. [illegible], Samuel L. Hecht, Charles H. Hertz, G. I. Peavy, Felix Vorenberg, M. E. Wysanski and Charles Weil also spoke.

Mr. Vorenberg, in announcing his resignation, said:

"Strange as it may seem, when I first consented to take the presidency of the Hebrew Benevolent Association I little thought I would hold it for so long a period. That I have is because of you gentlemen and of the substantial support which you have given me. It is now eleven years since I first had the privilege of presiding over your deliberations, but I will say at this time that without your able advice this association would never have obtained the standing it enjoys in the community today. While I will not occupy the position of presiding officer I shall never allow my interest to cease in behalf of the poor of Boston."

Declare Election of M. V. M. Captain Void

A sensation was caused in Malden when it was learned that the election of Lieutenant Jacobs as captain of Company L, Malden Rifles, M. V. M., has been declared void by the Military Examining Board. He defeated Lieutenant Berg, acting captain, by a vote of 31 to 17. He later passed the examinations in physical qualifications, but his election was contested, it is said, by the faction supporting Lieutenant Berg, as "illegal."

TODAY TAG DAY OF NEWSBOYS' UNION

Today is tag day for the Boston newsboys.

Every newsboy is wearing a white tag and this decoration proclaims that he is going to give 50 per cent of his earnings of today to help defray the expenses of an outing to be given to the poor crippled children of Boston and vicinity on Memorial Day at Caledonian Grove, West Roxbury, under the auspices of the Boston Newsboys' Protective Union.

The little street merchants who are making a real material sacrifice to aid unfortunates are sparing no efforts to make the event an occasion of happiness to the little ones who are deprived of the joys of healthy childhood. Besides the individual contributions which the newsboys are making today, the Newsboys' Protective Union has abandoned its banquet to commemorate the fourteenth anniversary of the founding of the union, and the funds which would be used for that event are to be contributed towards the expense of the outing.

Nathan S. [illegible], chairman of the general committee, and "Happy," the King of the Newsboys, assisted by a number of newsboys, are directing the activities of the day.

The most important problem that confronts the committee in charge of the outing is the shortage of automobiles for conveying the children. The committee appeals to all public-spirited citizens who wish to assist the newsboys in their undertaking for the use of their automobiles for that day. The committee asks them to communicate with the secretary, M. H. [illegible], No. [illegible] Washington street.

Huntington Stars May Run at Yale

Charley Ziegler and Marling of the Huntington School may take part in the Yale interscholastics at New Haven next Saturday. Ziegler and Marling both did well in the Harvard games last Saturday and many believe they would win events at New Haven.

George Crowther to Join Pawtucket

PAWTUCKET, May 18.—George Crowther, the former Brown University infielder and who last Fall coached the football candidates of Allen school, West Newton, will join the Pawtucket Tigers of the Colonial League. Crowther played with New Haven last Summer, and Manager Connor expects he will fill the vacancy caused by the injury to Johnson, who has been playing shortstop.

BRAVES READY FOR PIRATES

By A. H. C. MITCHELL.

Friends of the Braves have not yet entirely recovered from the shock of the defeats administered their favorites on Friday and Saturday. Losing Friday's game in the ninth inning to the Cards by having the visitors pound out five runs in the ninth inning was bad enough, but to have the Pirates come along and repeat the dose the very next day was something that completely dazed them.

This column remarked on Saturday morning that what had happened in Friday's game probably wouldn't happen again in a long time, yet the happening was duplicated a few hours after the prediction was made.

Which shows that it is very foolish thing to make predictions in baseball.

The Braves needed those two lessons. It will teach them to play the game until the last armed foe expires. On Friday the Rabbit's slip started the scoring. On Saturday it was the Braves' pitchers who were to blame. Of course the fortunes of war were with the Pirates. Those grounders that zipped through the diamond for safe hits might have gone directly at a fielder instead of going out of his reach.

The same teams line up again today and again tomorrow provided the weather is kind. We may expect to see James Tyler in action in these two games and the chances are that Adams and McQuillen will do the pitching for the Pirates.

It is to be presumed that Stallings has worked his crew up to the proper frame of mind by this time. He has had plenty of time to tell them what he thinks of their performances of Friday and Saturday. Yesterday's postponed game will go forward to July when it will form part of a double-header.

Horsemen form New Club to Hold Races

Horsemen of Framingham, Hudson, Marlboro, Northboro, Southboro, Sudbury and Westboro have formed a driving club to be known as the Middlesex Driving Club. Harry L. Parmenter of Sudbury has been elected president. Arthur Welles is the secretary and H. T. Balfour the treasurer. A racing committee has been appointed and gentlemen's races are planned at stated intervals until late into the Fall. The first race comes Monday, May 31, at the Marlboro Driving Park.

Harvard and Yale to Play Lacrosse

Harvard and Yale will compete in lacrosse for the first time next Saturday at New Haven. The Crimson team has just tucked away the championship of the Northern Division of the Intercollegiate League, and will meet Johns Hopkins, winner in the other division, at Cambridge on May 29. Yale, although a novice at lacrosse, is said to have a very good team and hopes to give their Cambridge rivals quite an argument.

Dogs Pace Athletes Out for Track Team

An odd but excellent system for pacing track athletes has been introduced by Coach Childs of Indiana University. The idea originated abroad, where for many years coaches have used hounds, trained to run on cinder track, to set the pace for their runners. Coach Childs has now introduced it for the first time in America and his runners are being trained to keep up with the fast pace set by the dogs.

CARRIGAN HAS GOOD PITCHERS

CLEVELAND, Ohio, May 18.—Bill Carrigan, the hustling leader of the Boston Red Sox, is going to be confronted with a difficult problem one of these days. But it's one that every major league manager would rather wrestle with than have the opposite of the case.

Smokey Joe Wood came back to life with a vengeance Sunday against the Indians and Manager Carrigan is looking forward to a long string of victories from the American League pitching pace-maker of 1912.

By the same token if Carrigan's two premier southpaws, Ray Collins and Vean Gregg, emulate Woods' example, the question naturally arises, "what's Carrigan going to do with all of his classy moundmen?"

Ruth, Shore, Mays, Leonard and Foster have all shown to advantage this Spring and now Wood comes through with the real article. Should Collins and Gregg follow suit Boss Bill will have eight first-class twirlers at his beck and call. And eight A No. 1 pitchers is really too many for any club. The really good pitchers always show to best advantage when they are worked regularly, say every fourth day, or every fifth day at the outside. A longer rest than five days between games generally works to a pitcher's disadvantage more so than to his advantage.

With eight twirlers in working order Carrigan might be forced to draft a new schedule, say work them on a fice-and-four-inning basis. But the Red Sox leader's willing to take the chance. He says he would prefer to have all of his eight slab artists ready for the word than to have only three of them fit and the others nursing lame arms. Guess Bill's right, too.

YALE CREWS TO BE REORGANIZED

NEW HAVEN, Ct., May 18.—Yale varsity and fresmmen rowing squads will be reorganized today for the final stage of the season, the regatta with Harvard at New London, June 25. Only two weeks remain before the Yale oarsmen will go to the Thames to spend a little more than three weeks in training for the annual races with Harvard.

Coach Guy Nickalls has ordered a unique policy for the oarsmen the coming week in view of their short time to prepare for the Harvard regatta. He has notified the first and second crews that they will be given a week's vacation.

Instead of retaining simply two varsity crews for the last month of practice at home he has decided to organize a third crew, selecting it from the best oarsmen of the class crews who competed at the Spring regatta a week ago.

Colonial League to Open Season on Thursday

The Colonial League season will start Thursday with games in Taunton, Springfield, Fall River and Hartford. The new league will be officially opened with all appropriate ceremony.

The first three days' games will be as follows:

Thursday, May 20—New Bedford at Taunton, Pawtucket at Springfield, Brockton at Fall River, New Haven at Hartford.

Friday, May 21—Taunton at New Bedford, Fall River at Brockton, Pawtucket at Springfield, New Haven at Hartford.

Saturday, May 22—Fall River at New Bedford, Pawtucket at New Haven, Springfield at Hartford, Taunton at Brockton.

SCHOOL CREWS IN TRIALS TODAY

The Greater Boston Interscholastic Rowing Association regatta will be held on the Charles River today. It is estimated that some 2,000 students will witness the races which will be participated in by more than fifteen four-oared schoolboy crews.

With upwards of 3,000 girls and boys along the shores, lending encouragement to their favorites in the regatta, the preliminaries today promise to present a spectacular sight. A prize has been offered by A. Paul Keith, president of the Boston Athletic Association, under whose auspices the association is conducted. Mr. Keith has offered a large bronze trophy for the first crews.

Huntington School and Rindge Technical first fours have an edge on the other crews, with Brookline High and Commerce other likely qualifiers. Each member of the Huntington and Rindge crews is experienced and has been under fire. The stroke of the Huntington crew is Harold Ogden, of Winchester, who held the seat last year; George Dernier at 3 rowed for English High last year; Arthur Lundquist, Huntington captain, rows 2, having held that seat on the second last year, while Aubrey Ames at bow rowed that position for the Huntington second a year ago. Captain Walter Coleman of Rindge rowed 3 last year, having shifted to stroke upon the graduation of his brother. Neil McDonald is a member of last year's championship crew, with Gunten and Harriman having rowed in the second.

Shortstop of the Braves

Now it is claimed that the wily pitchers have discovered another way to get the ball to take a peculiar shoot. One of them is to rub talcum powder on the horsehide.

"In one of the games over in St. Louis, where I was umpiring," said Umpire Dineen of the American League, "Joe Benz, the Chicago White Sox pitcher, refused to use a ball that had been roughened up by coming in contact with the grandstand.

"I was also told by a pitcher that a substitute had been discovered for emery, and you will be surprised when I tell you that the substitute is talcum powder.

"Yes, they tell me that the same 'emery ball' outshoot can be obtained by rubbing a little talcum powder on the sphere. Of course, I have yet to be shown, but it would be interesting to know if this can be done."

A new order by Manager Herzog has created consternation among the golfing contingent. The Red leader has decided that playing golf all the morning does not tend to activity in the afternoon, and he has forbidden any of the players to play the ancient game except on off days.

George Twombly had it all arranged to go out to Garden City the other day and try his skill on the famous course over there, but the expedition had to be called off. Twombly is now a regular, and Herzy figures that he should keep all his energies for the pastime which pays his salary.

Just at the present time Morton, who was beaten by the Red Sox on Sunday, is the kingpin in Cleveland baseball circles. His record and his pitching are being compared with the work of the departed Addie Joss, who was always the idol of the Cleveland baseball public when he was a star boxman for the old Naps. It is seldom that a young pitcher with less than a year of service in the majors is announced as the pitcher for any particular game, but that is the case with Morton. Veteran boxmen have been relegated to the rear by the fans of the sixth city and Morton is the man of the hour.

The new sensation joined the Cleveland forces in July of last year after hanging up a phenomenal record for strikeouts and general pitching effectiveness in the Eastern Association. He proceeded to drop thirteen games in as many starts before he cashed in with a victory during the latter part of the season. When it was all over the pitching records, based on the system of earned runs, showed that the Naps had been more of a handicap than a help to the new pitcher. This had been suspected for some time before the records were published.

Groundkeepers should look carefully at the straps which bind the base bags to their positions. Such a simple little thing as a strap snapping is claimed to have caused the spiking of Catcher Henry, of the Washington team. Henry's accident can certainly be put down as a freak event.

In a game at Chicago Henry hit a long fly to right field. As Henry stepped on the first base bag the strap holding the bag broke and Henry was thrown to the ground. In falling the heel spikes of Henry's left shoe struck the inside of his right leg near the knee and tore the flesh almost to the bone.

Odd things are continually cropping up in baseball, but this is one of the queerest accidents that has been recorded for some time.

Another of those big guys has proved a bloomer. Like a dozen other disappointments that might be named, Henri Rondeau has failed to justify Clark Griffith in the purchase that he made. Griffith gave Cashion, Smith, Williams, Holland and Massey, all minor league players of good repute, for the ex-Tiger. He was touted last fall as sure to make good as a hitter, a speed artist and a fielder.

Rondeau fielded well, it is said, but he didn't hit, and had no chance to show how he could run. Also, he displeased Griff by his lack of aggression. So he now has been returned to Minneapolis for the pick of the team this Fall, the A. A. club retaining the man it originally secured for the player. In addition, Harry Harper, a left-hand pitcher, goes to the Minneapolis team. Griffith asked waivers on Harper, and failed to get them. He is taking a chance, and must recall the player if any club in his own league insists.

CARMAN IN DANGER OF LOSING TITLE

Clarence Carman, the national middle-distance bike champion, will make his first appearance of the season at the Revere Cycle Track on next Saturday night, when he will meet George Wiley and Vincent Madono in a twenty-five mile motor-paced race.

The tandem races, which proved so popular at the beach last season, will also have a prominent place on the program Saturday evening. Manager Butler has not yet announced the riders who will take part in this event, but he is negotiating with several pairs well advanced in this style of riding and will be at liberty to announce them in a day or two; in addition to these two events, the regular card of amateur and professional races will be run off.

• • •

Madono is likely to cut quite a figure in the motor-paced event Saturday evening. He made such an impressive showing at the Beach the other night that Manager Butler decided to give him a chance against the big fellow. Madono reeled off five miles at a 1:15 clip, which is fast time even for men of the Wiley and Carman calibre. Madono seems to have overcome all the bad faults which he encountered during his first season at the paced game last year.

• • •

With Carman and Wiley riding at top speed as they are sure to do, Madono certainly has his work cut out for him. Wiley is out to win back the American title this year, while Carman is confident that he will be able to retain it. This means a spirited battle all season long, and, as the Revere race Saturday night will be the first meeting this year, the fans can figure out for themselves just how the championship is apt to swing.

RITCHIE AND BALDWIN CLASH IN ATLAS A. A. BOUT TONIGHT

By JACK CONWAY.

Willie Ritchie, former lightweight champion of the world and boss of the American 133-135 pound glove men, has been made a favorite in the betting for his twelve-round bout with Matty Baldwin, which will be staged before the Atlas A. A. tonight. The tussle has aroused an intense amount of interest and a capacity crowd is expected to turn out to witness the festivities.

Columns have been written about Ritchie during the past few years, but this is the first time that he has shown in this city. The "fans" are anxious to see him in action as he is rated as one of the greatest fighting machines developed during the past decade.

Freddy Welsh is a wonderful boxer. His remarkable ring skill and sensational speed have enabled him to win the majority of his battles with ease. Ritchie is one of the few lightweights who are as fast as Welsh. The champion is a better ring general than Ritchie but he does not possess any more boxing skill than the supple-limbed Californian.

RITCHIE HARD PUNCHER.

Ritchie has one big advantage over Welsh. It is youth. Willie is only twenty-four years of age while Welsh is a battle-scarred veteran of twenty-nine. It is reasonable to suppose that Welsh will not be able to keep at the head of his boxing class much longer, while Ritchie should continue to sweep all before him in the lightweight ranks for some time to come.

The Welshman also relies chiefly upon his boxing skill in order to win his bouts. The Yankee boy, on the other hand, is able to punch hard as well as box cleverly. He is also very aggressive and is at his best in twenty-round contests where the second and third raters are eliminated when pitted against high class performers.

There should be plenty of action in tonight's bout, as Baldwin is one of the few lightweights who is able to make things interesting for Ritchie. The Charlestown veteran clashed with the American champion in a twenty-round tussle in California in August, 1911. It was Ritchie's first twenty-round engagement and he was beaten all the way.

The 'Frisco boy has, of course, improved since he lost to Baldwin. He has met most of the world's leading lightweights and has mastered most of the fine points of the glove game. Matty, on the other hand, is probably not any better today than he was when he won from the Californian.

Even though Baldwin is beaten this evening, he should carry Ritchie along at a merry clip. He is a strong, aggressive fighter and a fine ring general. Ritchie declared in an interview with the writer the other day that he considered Baldwin one of the best ring generals in the lightweight division. He did not hesitate to state that Matty completely outclassed him when they met on the Coast, but he added that conditions have changed since then. Willie realizes that he was an inexperienced youth when he lost to Baldwin, while he is a leader in the boxing division today.

'FRISCO BOY VERY GRACEFUL.

There are few glove men who are as graceful in the ring as Ritchie. He stands up straight and does not resort to any kind of crouch, like so many of our present-day ring stars. He is blessed with a tantalizing left jab which usually keeps his opponent at bay. Willie's best blow is a right-hand smash to the body. He usually keeps driving this punch at a spot over his opponent's heart. It is not as spectacular as a wild swing to the jaw but it usually does more damage.

Ritchie is anxious to win tonight's bout as he realizes that he would have a difficult task getting a match with Welsh if he were to lose a decision to Baldwin. The American champion is very much pleased with the treatment which has been accorded to him since he arrived in Boston Saturday, and informed the writer that he would be glad to box Gilbert Gallant of Chelsea at the Arena if he is successful in his whirl with Baldwin.

Hartford Colonials Receive 3 from Feds

NEWARK, N. J., May 18.—Pitchers Fred Trautman and Harry Billiard and Outfielder Gilbert Whitehouse were released by Manager Bill Phillips of the Newark Federal League club and were sent to the Hartford club of the Colonial League. Trautman is considered a promising twirler, but he never got a chance with nine pitchers classed as regulars by the local manager. Billiard is a veteran performer, while Whitehouse is a youngster who needs more seasoning.

Chick and Maloney in Ring Battle

Joe Chick, the Gloucester boxer, has been matched to clash with Pete Maloney of Philadelphia in a twelve-round bout, which will be staged before the Lakeside A. C. in Southbridge on June 3. The men are expected to put up a hard contest.

HARVARD CREWS SHIFTED BY WRAY

The Harvard second and sophomore crews, entered in the Henley regatta at Philadelphia next Saturday, have been shaken up by Coach Wray on the eve of their departure.

The most important and radical shift in the second eight was the interchanging of the stroke and No. 2. R. R. Brown '17 was placed at No. 2, while F. W. Ross '16 gave up his place at two and is now stroking the boat. Captain [illegible] was unable to report yesterday on account of a cold and a general shift took place, J. Talcott '16, moving up from No. 4 to No. 6, and A. Potter '17 being taken from the sophomore boat to No. 4.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKET

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were a little weaker at the opening and during the first fifteen minutes continued to ease off. Trading was not of large volume. Speculators and investors are in a waiting mood. Reports that Germany's reply to President Wilson's note on the Lusitania and other international matters may be received within a day or two tended to inspire caution and restrict operations. There is as much uncertainty as to its market effect as there is to its character. American stocks were not quite so firm in the afternoon in London as yesterday, although prices advanced in New York yesterday. It is said that in London financial circles there is less optimism as to what attitude Germany will take toward the United States than there is in this country.

It is reported from New York that most of the early selling today was by those who had assumed the long position on the upward movement yesterday. There was little demand for stocks this morning. There seemed little support to the leaders which advanced on Monday.

DECLINES IN NEW YORK.

Among the early declines in New York were Amalgamated ½, Chino ⅝, Utah Copper 1⅛, Anaconda ⅞, Inspiration ¾, American Can ⅝, United States Steel 1⅛, American Locomotive 1⅛, Bethlehem Steel 1, Goodrich ⅛, Mexican Petroleum ⅝, Pressed Steel Car ½, United States Rubber ⅝, Studebaker ⅝, Westinghouse 1⅛, Rock Island ⅝, Atchison ⅝, Canadian Pacific ⅝, Reading ⅝, Southern Pacific ⅝, Union Pacific 1⅛ and Baltimore & Ohio ⅝.

COPPER SHARES LOWER.

There was nothing said about the business being done in copper metal at present, but it is understood it is not extensive. In the London metal market spot was off 5s, futures 5s and electrolytic £1. Copper shares were lower in Boston as well as in New York, local declines including Granby ¾, Wolverine ½, Superior ½, Butte & Superior ⅝, American Zinc ⅛, U. S. Smelting ¼, Alaska Gold ⅛, United Fruit ½ and Boston & Maine ½.

[illegible] was strong in the London market, advancing £1.

NEW HAVEN EARNINGS.

The report of the New Haven road to the Public Service Commission for the first quarter of this year shows a net loss of but $65,095. The loss for the corresponding quarter last year was $1,212,932.

What's to Become of Your Pets This Summer?

When you go away on your vacation, perhaps you won't take them with you, and as much as you dislike to you must sell "Tabby" or "Fido" or "Polly"—just as it happens to be. The easiest way is to advertise him—or her—in the "Dogs, Cats & Birds" Columns of the Boston American.

There is an excellent chance that you will find a buyer who will treat your pet as well as you did. Telephone your ad to Main 5180, or leave it at either office.

OUR FIRST DUTY IS TO MAINTAIN PEACE; OUR NEXT DUTY IS TO PREPARE FOR WAR

Wise Criticism Is the Navy's Greatest Aid

Almost passionately the Secretary of the Navy defends the force under his command and his administration of his office.

We doubt whether the navy would quite as passionately defend its Secretary.

However, Secretary Daniels either misunderstands or misinterprets the utterances of the host of public men and the great body of newspapers that join with the AMERICAN in demanding an adequate navy.

We criticise the present navy as a whole, not ship by ship. We yield to no public voice, official or other, in our outspoken pride in the ships we have and in the men who man and officer them.

But we insist that we have not enough ships; that the ships we have do not include enough classes to form an effective battle fleet, and that we have not enough men to man the ships now in commission.

And despite the oratory of Secretary Daniels, we submit that his recommendations to Congress did not indicate an earnest desire to correct these conditions.

The gradual unfolding of naval strategy in this war has shown the battle cruiser and the submarine to be the most effective units of naval force. The former are battleships of very high speed and powerful batteries, but with lighter armor than the dreadnought type. Of these Japan has two in commission. England had eight at the beginning of the war, and is believed to have completed others since. Germany has four, and others on the stocks.

THE UNITED STATES HAS NOT ONE BATTLE CRUISER.

It is needless to recount the exploits of the German submarines. If their activity as commerce destroyers has aroused our national resentment, their more daring exploits—as when Weddigen sunk the Aboukir, the Cressy and the Hogue—compel respect and even admiration.

Our submarine fleet is utterly inadequate.

Of the less spectacular but highly essential auxiliaries to the fleet, Admiral Fiske said recently:

> "We have only one mine layer. We need five additional mine layers. On board that one mine layer are only 336 mines. Germany had 20,000 mines when the war started."

These are but incidential illustrations of the elements of weakness in our fleet today. They can be stated, emphasized and reiterated without justly causing the Secretary of the Navy or any other official to declare that one presenting them is animated by hostility to or contempt for the navy as it exists.

Rather are they offered to spur the nation on to give to the navy the support it needs and merits until that ideal is approached which Admiral Dewey thus proclaims:

> "We need more ships, more officers and more men, and should continue the wise policy of increasing the size of our navy, which must ever remain our first and best line of defence. This defence, unless adequate, is impotent; and adequacy is not reached until the navy is strong enough to meet on equal terms the navy of the strongest probable adversary."

You Can All Help to Stop a Dishonest Practice

Since the AMERICAN told the story of the habit which was growing in this community of buying goods "on approval" and then returning them after having used them, there has been a noticeable decrease in the practice. This shows that there is resiliency in the moral fibre of those people who have been guilty of this pernicious and dishonest practice.

But it has not been altogether discontinued and the AMERICAN again calls attention of the public to its existence. Every honest person who buys goods on approval is interested in helping to suppress this dishonest habit, because it increases the cost of goods to the honest customers and it puts in jeopardy the very convenient method of allowing goods to be sent on approval.

It is highly probable that if the practice of obtaining goods with the intention of using them temporarily and sending them back grows apace, the merchants will be obliged to discontinue allowing goods to be sent on approval.

There are a hundred ways in which the neighbors of a woman who is indulging in this petty, dishonest practice can make her stop. The practice is beneath an honest woman's contempt and no woman can be told how to express her contempt when she feels it. Public opinion in this country is the most powerful engine for correcting social evils and this is a habit which, if tolerated, will spread and spreading will certainly tend to lower the moral standards of the community.

Watch your neighbor and if you find that she has on borrowed raiment or has adorned her house for a party with goods for which she does not intend to pay, make a mental note of it. The psychology of even silent opinion is often of great power.

Government by Ghosts Is Passing

By ELBERT HUBBARD

A GHOST is spirit. It has form, but no substance.

It has a great fund of information received without working for it, and this it gives gratuitously—usually for some one's aggrandizement.

Macbeth met three ghosts one foggy day out on a lonely heath.

To the accompaniment of much thunder and lightning they told him what he wanted to hear. And then they vanished as bubbles on the yeasty deep.

But they did not tell him enough.

"Stay, you imperfect spirits, tell me more!" cried Macbeth.

That seems to be the trouble with ghosts. They do not complete plans. They are not organizers. So they are not good leaders.

They use a "come-on" system. A little ghost information demands more ghost.

They are not teachers. They are only informers.

A teacher's business is to induce his pupils to think for themselves; to work constantly for graduation time, when the pupils shall have ceased to need the teacher's tuition.

THE ghost is efficient in arousing curiosity with regard to personal interests — "What is going to happen to me?"

The ghost destroys faith. It makes all decisions and paternalizes those who believe in it.

"Canst thou look into the seeds of time and say which grains will grow and which will not?" That is what the followers of ghosts want to know.

The ghosts that Macbeth met spurred him on to his ruin.

Even the appearance of Banquo's ghost did not reform this over-ambitious king.

Caesar's ghost met Brutus on the plains of Philippi. But it worked no reform in Brutus' mind or heart. It brought him no understanding that he had betrayed a friend, and that reforms cannot be made by dagger thrusts.

The ghost simply made Brutus despair, so that he fell upon his own sword and died. Caesar's ghost left no influence upon his time. It did not save Rome. It surprised his unwise friends who "loved not Caesar less, but Rome more." That was all.

The king's ghost that urged Prince Hamlet to avenge his death brought wholesale slaughter to the entire family and ruin to a kingdom.

Ghosts have always been uncanny. They haunted graveyards. Appearing at times of deep depression, they have added gloom to gloom.

They were harbingers to the unusual omens of evil.

INTELLIGENT people today do not believe in embodied, unsubstanced spirits.

No one sees ghosts now.

And yet we are practically ruled by ghosts—the ghosts of the past, the spirit of customs originated by the exceptionally strong man when the race was young and barbarian.

AMERICA was settled by people who wanted to think for themselves.

They crossed the ocean in order that they might get away from the ghosts of authority.

They demanded freedom from "taxation without representation" in politics and religion.

The Republic was founded by those who claimed that here was a place where human beings should be at liberty to think freely on all subjects.

Anne Hutchinson, economically independent, came to America with her fifteen children that she might have religious freedom. She was alive, thinking her own thoughts and living her own life. She could not believe what the ghosts had taught.

But she was banished through the influence of the ghosts of those long dead.

Her friend, Mary Dyer, was hanged on Boston Common because she exercised her right of free speech.

WHILE John Adams was in the Continental Congress, some months before the Declaration of Independence was signed, his wife, Abigail Smith Adams, wrote:

"I long to hear you have declared an independency.

"And, by the way, in the new code of laws, which I suppose it will be necessary for you to make, I desire you would remember the women and be more just and favorable to them than your ancestors.

"Do not put such unlimited power into the hands of husbands.

"Remember, all men would be tyrants if they could.

"If particular care and attention are not paid to the women we are determined to foment a rebellion and will not hold ourselves bound to obey any laws in which we have no voice nor representation."

* * *

DURING the Revolutionary War, while men, and women, too, were giving their lives, their entire interest for the fundamental principle that taxation without representation is tyranny, Hannah Lee Corbin of Virginia protested to her brother, General Richard Henry Lee, that it was just as wrong to tax women without allowing them the right to vote as it was to tax men under the same conditions.

It was neither reason nor justice that forbade women the privilege of exercising such right. The authority was the ghosts of warriors who made right might.

Sex discrimination was the ghost which caused Rousseau to consider the mental development of women subservient to that of man, and only worth while when it contributed to man's pleasure, inspiration and advancement. He says:

> "The education of women should always be relative to men. To please, to be useful to us, to make us love and esteem them, to educate us when young, and take care of us when grown up; to advise, to console us, to render our lives easy and agreeable these are the duties of women at all times, and what they should be taught in their infancy."

But Rousseau does not say why the divine right of men, nor why women should give their lives for them.

GHOSTS do not reason. Ghosts affirm. It is the ghost of barbarisms which says: "I will show you a short cut to power."

Such are the war ghosts.

Europe today is under their spell and the whole world is paying tribute in blood and tears.

Ghosts are not financiers. They do not count the cost before declaring war. The cost of war in men and money is so great that no one who now is interested in war dares compute it.

The suffering, the unspeakable misery and death among women and children are incomputable.

The loss in hope, aspiration and joy in living from those who will survive the war cannot be measured.

The light of life has gone from many homes.

* * *

IS the reign of the ghost passing? I think it is.

Women need no longer be economically dependent. The doors of commerce are flung wide. Every business wants efficient help.

Public schools, State universities are open to women and men alike.

Almost every profession will accept women.

Any woman, who so desires, may choose to earn so that she need not fear starvation.

Educated, economically independent women are using their brains. They think, and when they think they realize, as do men, that the living must not be ruled by the dead. They are seeing the folly of ghost worship.

The tendency of our time is to say to all ghosts that haunt the present:

"Avaunt! and quit my sight! let earth hide thee!
Thy bones are marrowless, thy blood is cold!
Thou hast no speculation in those eyes
Which thou dost glare with."

MR. ELBERT HUBBARD, prior to his departure for Europe on the Lusitania, prepared a series of articles for the American to be used in his absence. The next of his articles, to which added interest attaches owing to Mr. Hubbard's tragic death, will appear on this page next Friday.

In-Shoots

Many a smart kid who has ruled his mother has found it a different proposition to govern a wife.

We always like to quote threatening Scripture when it applies to the other chap.

In these days of enterprise it is better to get room on the ground floor than at the top.

The man who believes everything that he hears will do well to stop up his ears part of the time.

To call it "fox trot" is insult if not cruelty to animals.

When experience will turn an honest man into a rogue it is better to remain unsophisticated.

At a critical period, of course, it is better to have your head than your feet cool.

It is easier to convince a man in an argument than it is to make him admit it.

"Long ago, Hinnissy, I larned that whin me heart ached f'r others, the on'y way I cud save mesilf from financyal roon was to jine a charity organization."
